Gov. Ridge Declares Drought Emergency

Editor's Note: Gov. Ridge warns that if conditions do not improve, Pennsylvania may face the worst drought on record in state history.

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Gov. Tom Ridge this week signed a proclamation declaring a drought emergency in 55 Pennsylvania counties and calling on Pennsylvanians to conserve water as drought conditions statewide continue to deteriorate.

Gov. Ridge said that, should conditions not improve, this drought has the potential to be worse than the drought of 1964 — the worst drought on record in state history.

"Pennsylvania's water supply is at dangerously low levels," said Gov. Ridge, just before signing the drought emergency declaration. "I urge all Pennsylvanians to do their part to conserve water in every way they can. Reduce the amount of water you use both inside and outside the home. If we don't act now to conserve our water, there won't be any water left to conserve. And we'll face the worst drought in our state's history. That's why today I will declare a drought emergency in 55 Pennsylvania counties."

Four counties — Armstrong, Butler, Clarion and Jefferson — remain in a drought warning. Eight counties — Crawford, Erie, Elk, Forest, McKean, Mercer, Venango and Warren — are under a drought watch. With Gov. Ridge's action today, the remaining 55 counties now are under a drought emergency.

A drought watch, the first stage of the three drought declarations, calls for a voluntary 5 percent reduction of non-essential water use. A drought warning, the second of the three-stage drought response, calls for a 10 percent voluntary reduction in water consumption. A drought emergency, the third and most severe stage, imposes mandatory restrictions on water use. Gov. Ridge must declare a drought emergency.

Gov. Ridge cited the following reasons behind the deteriorating drought conditions statewide: little snow this winter; little rain this spring; and a dry, hot summer. The results of these factors are: record-low stream levels; very low groundwater levels; and wells running dry.

"The water levels we're seeing today — in the middle of summer — are on par with levels we would see in September or October," Gov. Ridge said. "Groundwater levels typically won't begin to re-

Ninth Annual Farm-City Day Attracts 2,200 People

CAROLYN N. MOYER
Tioga Co. Correspondent

LAWRENCEVILLE (Tioga Co.) — "Food is one of the greatest bargains in the world," proclaimed master of ceremonies Jim Welch as he launched the ninth annual Tioga County Farm-City Day.

John and Sandy Ogden and family served as the hosts for the event, agreeing to open their 200-acre farm to more than 2,200 visitors Saturday, July 10, in an effort to educate the public about the importance of farming.

"No farm-city day can exist without the host family," continued Welch as he told people that family farms like this one are going out of existence at an alarming rate. "The younger generation may not want to pursue this business with this kind of an income, or they might not be able to afford it."

Joining Welch in opening the day's events was chairperson Bonnie Keil, who thanked the committees and more than 100 volunteers for making this day a success. She especially thanked the volunteers who came to the rescue at 6 a.m. to re-erect tents that were felled by strong winds the night before.

Government officials including the Tioga County commissioners, Rep. Matt Baker, Sen. Roger Madigan, and Deputy Secretary of Agriculture Russell Redding also

Agri-Industry Out In Force At Annual FFA Golf Event

ANDY ANDREWS

DENVER (Lancaster Co.) — Two hundred eighty-two golfers braved high heat and humidity Monday afternoon at two golf courses to raise money for the largest youth organization in the world — FFA.

Agri-industry representatives from around the state turned out in force not only to golf, but to bid on a multitude of donated items at the annual Hoss's Fore FFA Golf Tournament at Fox Chase and Hawk Valley golf courses. A benefit auction was conducted after the tournament at Fox Chase.

About $13,000 was raised at the auction, and overall about $30,000, according to Kerry Hoffman of the Pennsylvania FFA Foundation, at the yearly event to benefit state FFA.

Not for an instant did golfers let the heat (as high as 100 degrees) and humidity distract them. Some went to the links Monday morning. When it was over, the top Fox Chase team, with a score of 57, was from Evergreen Farms Inc., Spruce Creek. The highest score for the Hawk Valley team, a 59, was recorded by Laret Sign Company, Hollidaysburg.

The Evergreen Farms team, Team 10A, was comprised of Abe Harpster, Mike Czap, Robert Bokunewicz, and Tom Buck. The Hawk Valley team, Team 5, from Laret Sign, included Jack Laret, John Gentry, Ron Dandrea, and Jim Parlier.

Placing second at Fox Chase was Team 18, comprised of Leon Fultz, Randy Herrold, Roger Bowersox, and Ken Swineford, with a score of 57 (losing the tie-breaker to Evergreen). Placing third with a score of 60 was John Coldiron, Scott Gold, Steve Moran, and Dave Huston.

JULY 21, 1999

NATIONAL EGG MARKET - AT A GLANCE

In Chicago, prices were sharply higher on the larger sizes, and in the Eastern region, prices were unchanged to higher on the medium and larger sizes. Elsewhere, prices were unchanged. The market tone ranged steady to firm, with the larger sizes continuing in the strongest position. Demand was fair to good, mostly moderate, with best interest usually noted where scattered feature activity was a factor. Supplies of the larger eggs were mostly tight to occasionaly adequate, and the remainder of sizes were generally adequate. Breaking stock supplies were adequate from regular sources, however, some breakers continued to utilize lighter weight product where heavier nest runs remained unavailable. Light type hens were adequate to ample for current slaughter needs.

National Grain Market

St. Joseph, MO
Wed Jul 21, 1999
USDA-MO Dept Ag Market News

DAILY NATIONAL GRAIN SUMMARY

Grain and soybean bids continue to extend gains for the third consecu- tive day. Above normal temperatures, scattered rainfall, and concerns over possible crop stress supported bids. Wheat was also higher on export optimism. Wheat 3 to 7 cents higher. Corn 5 to 7 cents higher. Sorghum 14 to 15 cents higher. Soybeans 17 to 21 cents higher. Wheat bids continue to follow corn and soybean bids higher. Indications that Jordan bought 2 million bushels of U.S. hard red winter wheat and expected tenders for next week, boosted bids. Hot temperatures continued across the Corn Belt areas with scattered thunderstorms reported in places. Concerns over corn being in the middle of pollination, offered strength. Also, fears that continued high temp- eratures could lead to some pretty stressed areas by August underpinned corn and bean bids.

The OLD FARMER'S THIS WEEK WITH ALMANAC

JULY 26-AUGUST 1, 1999

FULL THUNDER MOON, JULY 28.

AUGUST 1 IS LAMMAS DAY

From the Old English word for "loaf" and "mass," Lammas was originally the day to bless the first grains of harvest As often happens over time, however, the word was later confused with "lamb" and "mass," and newborn lambs were brought to the church for blessings, as well In a similar vein, we recently heard of a New Hampshire farmer who refers to his cosseted lambs (those needing extra pampering or bottle feeding) as "corseted," which gives quite a different (but still lovely) picture Spare the roast lamb, cosseted or trussed, from this feast, however Oatcakes and seaweed puddings are traditional fare

After Lammas, the corn ripens as much by night as by day.

TIP OF THE WEEK

☞ Close the windows and pull down the shades early in the morning to keep the house cool.

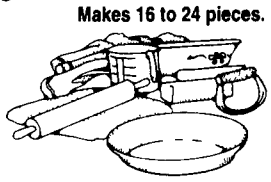
COMPANY OATCAKES

5 cups rolled oats
1 cup (2 sticks) butter, softened
1 cup condensed milk
1/4 cup fresh orange juice
pinch of salt

Preheat oven to 325° F Mix all ingredients in a food processor or with an electric mixer until well blended Spread into a well-greased pan (a 13x9-inch baking pan or 2 pie pans) Bake about 25 minutes, until dough begins to shrink from edge of pan Remove from pan and cut into squares or wedges, then place onto a greased cookie sheet Reduce heat to 275° and bake another 10 to 15 minutes, until golden

Makes 16 to 24 pieces.



The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER PROVERBS

Seaweed becomes damp and expands before wet weather.

Trout bite voraciously before a rain.

Observe on what day in August the first heavy fog occurs, and expect a hard frost on the same day in October.

Telmark has been leasing equipment for over 30 years. Did you know that we've been leasing new buildings for that long too? Consider:

- Tax deductibility and accelerated write-offs: Lease payments are income tax deductible over the term of the lease compared to 20-year depreciation of farm buildings and 39-year depreciation of commercial buildings. Could reduce tax liability this year.
- Low upfront costs: Beginning costs as little as one monthly lease payment.
- Flexible lease term: Building lease terms start aggressively at five years but may be as long as ten, twelve, or fifteen years.
- Customized payment schedules: Lease payment schedules are specially designed to match your cash flow.

OPINION

They Are!

Earlier this century, when people didn't have it so good, farmers were honored as the backbone of the nation. This was especially true when the war in Europe drew U.S. soldiers into the conflict, and the call went out to American farmers to dramatically increase food production. In those days farming was not only a way of life, and a good business, it was a patriotic occupation essential to the strength of our country.

Farmers were honored along with soldiers for their part in the nation's defense. For example, Charles Wilson, a farmer from Chester County was honored on January 7, 1943 at Indiantown Gap with a "V" award along with farmers from other counties.

Unlike people in other countries, our people in America have not experienced famine. Whenever they want food, they can go to the store. If they have no money they can go to the store with food stamps. The need for food is not an everyday experience. Actually, the American population on the average is so overweight it's obvious they have more food than they should have.

That's why the anti-agricultural movement in this country is so disconcerting. Taxes and other laws have already put restrictions on farmer's ability to farm. Instead of doing everything possible to help the farmer produce the food the world needs, the farmer is being discouraged to the point where many farmers now look only to feed their own family. The vision to feed those in need in the world is gone.

If farmers were important to the strength of the nation 50 years ago, why aren't they important for the same reason now? They are! And that's the reason we better wake up. To criticize the farmer with your mouth full is stupid. With the farm backbone of the nation in trouble, you can be sure the economic structure that looks so good on Wall Street has a hidden weakness that is not evident on the daily rise of the stock averages to new highs. A word to the wise is sufficient, as they say.

Now Is The Time

By John Schwartz

Lancaster County Agricultural Agent

To Look At Drought Stressed Corn

The prevailing drought conditions may adversely affect the pollination of the 1999 corn crop. Under normal conditions, tassel emergence begins in fields about July 15 and continues to about August 15. Ideally pollination occurs by August 1. About 60 days are required to mature the crop following pollination. According to Dr. Greg Roth, Penn State Agronomy Department, drought stress affects ear development and pollination. In most plants there is internal competition for vegetative development, tassel development and ear shoot development.

With severe drought stress prior to tasseling, ear shoot development may be delayed. This may result in bareness or delayed silk emergence. If silk development is delayed significantly following pollen shed by the tassels, then incomplete pollination may occur.

To Evaluate Pollination of Corn

Silks from the basal portion of the ear typically emerge first while the tip silks generally emerge last. Pollen shed normally coincides with the silk emergence and lasts for up to 7 days on an individual tassel. Because of plant variability in typical fields, pollen is sometimes available for up to 14 days. Pollination may be assessed by gently pulling the husks off an ear once the silks have turned brown and then gently shaking the ear. Those silks that remain attached to the ear were not pollinated. Often these will be the late emerging silks from the ear tip, but they may be scattered throughout the ear.

Because of the drought conditions, many fields will be producing what Robert Anderson, Lancaster County Extension Agronomy Agent, calls "hard of hearing corn silage," corn silage without very good years. Silage producers will have to monitor corn fields closely to determine when to harvest based on moisture content of the corn plant.

To Estimate Corn Yields

Once the pollination process is complete, a rough yield estimate may be made by determining the average number of kernels per ear and multiplying it by the plant population. Multiply the number of rows by the number of kernels per row to get the number of kernels per ear.

Then multiply this number by the plant population to get the number of kernels per acre. Then divide the kernels per acre by 90,000 to get the yield estimate in bushels per acre. For example, 16 rows times 20 kernels per row times 23,000 plants per acre equals 7.36 million kernels per acre. 7.36 million divided by 90,000 equals 81.8 bushels per acre. Yield estimates may be very useful in making marketing decisions. Row numbers and especially kernels per row will likely be reduced in many fields because of the drought stress that occurred while these yield components were being determined.

Feather Prof.'s Footnote: "It is not the amount of time you devote, but what you devote to the time that counts."

FARM FORUM

Editor:

The future of agriculture is a subject that brings many debates with many opinions as to what needs to be done to insure a bright future for agriculture and for the people who make this their vocation.

People who presently own farmland have it in their power to control what happens to farmland in the future. In order for agriculture to stay and be healthy the land prices and taxes need to be kept low. This would allow interested young people to stay with agriculture instead of going into other fields where there is better pay and financial security. This can happen if the present landowners make the sacrifice by not asking full price for their properties, thus helping the young dedicated farm youth to stay with the farm.

There are programs in most counties across the nation to help with the transfer of farm properties to others interested in agriculture. Unless the sacrifice is made for the willing young who take on a greater risk and challenge than their peers in many other ventures, we will continue to lose farmland to development.

LUKE 16: 1-9

Whenever in the past I have come across the story of Jacob and Esau, I have tended to side with Esau because he was obviously the victim of this brother's greed and treachery. I have also often wondered to myself how God could possibly have chosen Jacob instead of Esau as the heir of Abraham and Isaac and the bearer of his covenant. I thought God always favored the "good guys" and opposed the "bad guys"!

Of course, one of the fallacies with that kind of reasoning is that it fails to take into account that in this story, as well as in life itself, the line between the "good" and the "bad" is not as definitive or actual as we would like to think. It is hard to make a "good guy" out of Jacob — although God did!— and equally difficult to pigeonhole Esau. In fact, in this story there seems to be a notable lack of character on everyone's part: Isaac favoring Esau, Rebekah instigating Jacob against his brother, Jacob vilely cheating his brother, and Esau seeming to despise his own birthright. This is a story neither of angles nor devils, but something in-between. So, it is our story, too.

In the first incident, Genesis 25: 29-34, we can be so disturbed over Jacob's opportunism that we miss the culpable role Esau played. The writer tells us that "Esau despised his birthright." What was Esau's birthright? Answer; next to life itself, the greatest gift of a father could give his firstborn in those days—a double share of inheritance, leadership of the tribe and the role of bearer of God's covenant.

DESPISING YOUR BIRTHRIGHT

Because of my previous pro-Esau bias, I have often thought that the writer of Genesis was being unnecessarily negative in saying that Esau "despised his birthright" I probably would have edited the sentence to read: "did not sufficiently value his birthright." My dictionary says that "despise" means "to regard with contempt, distaste, disgust or disdain; scorn, loathe" — all of them powerful verbs and adverbs. So, was this just a poor choice on Esau's part or a much more serious dereliction?

I am now disposed to think that Esau may well deserve the stronger terms, for on closer examination, it seems to me that he was very contemptuous of his birthright, selling it for a pot of red lentils. Coming in from the field, he smelled and saw the pot of red lentils Jacob was cooking and he just had to have some. "Let me eat some of that red pottage, for I am famished" (25:30)

Actually, the judgement upon Esau is dependent upon the meaning of "famished" as he used it. "Famished" originally meant "extremely hungry, starved," but in popular usage it is also a way of saying that we are "very hungry." There is a real difference between being on the point of starvation and simply being "very hungry." I have said at times that I was "famished" or "starved," but I just meant that I was very hungry.

INSTANT GRATIFICATION

So what is Esau's sin here? It appears that Esau put his physical appetites above and beyond important realities. If he had been truly starving and at the point of death, the sale of his birthright would be understandable. But, if his hunger was not life-threatening, then we can understand the writer saying that "Esau despised his birthright." He sought instant gratification without any thought of the future. He treated his valuable birthright with contempt, valuing it no more highly than a bowl of red lentils.

For us, then, this story is as much about our own choices as it is Esau's—the gifts and graces, the resources, the potential God puts within each of us. How highly do we value what God gives us and how easily do we let these things go when "the price is right"? His birthright for a bowl of red lentils was an outrageous deal! The price he paid for that brief moment of personal satisfaction was obscenely expensive.

And we, what about the price we pay for instant and fleeting gratification?

Silage Spreaders with a Heritage of Quality

Lancaster Level-Flo has been the leader in non-motorized silage spreaders for more than 25 years. Each spreader is specifically designed to meet the needs of the individual operator.

Choose the spreader that best matches the equipment you use to fill your silo.

The Model 1030 Multi-Flo® is our standard silage spreader. With a 9" gooseneck, it is designed for average capacity blowers and silo sizes.

The Model 1200 Multi-Flo® has a 12" wide gooseneck. Its larger size all but eliminates plugging problems, even when you blow in haylage. It is especially helpful in larger silos.

The BlueMax® is built for those who push high-capacity silo filling equipment to the limit. All parts of the BlueMax® subject to wear are made 25% heavier - and the stainless steel plate is twice as heavy. For strength, there are reinforcements all around. Even our well-known non-binding hinge is heavier.

TOBACCO BLUE MOLD

CONTROL IT WITH

ACROBAT®

MZ FUNGICIDE

DIRECTIONS FOR USE IN FIELD GROWN TOBACCO

Directed Foliar Applications

Application Rates and Timing Chart To Control Blue Mold

Weeks Of Growth After Transplant	Rate Of ACROBAT MZ (Pounds of Product)	Water Output (Gallons/Acre)
Recently Transplanted to 3 weeks after transplanting	0.50	20
3-4 weeks after transplanting (Knee High)	1.0	40
4-5 weeks after transplanting (Waist High)	1.5	60

Note: Above directions are for dilute sprays If concentrate sprays are used, adjust rate and volumes proportionately, e g. for mist blowers, use a 2X concentrate and 1/2 the spray volume

Begin applications when the Blue Mold Advisory states that conditions favor development of blue mold, and before the onset of disease infection. Continue applications on a 5-7 day spray schedule until weather conditions favoring infection and sporulation decrease. Discontinue sprays when and if the threat of blue mold subsides.

ACROBAT MZ can only be used in a preventative spray program to manage blue mold in tobacco. Total plant coverage is essential to achieve maximum disease control with ACROBAT MZ. ACROBAT MZ must be used in accordance with the label.

Land O' Lakes Breaks Ground

— Land O' Lakes Inc. held a groundbreaking ceremony July 8 for a $28 million expansion that will double the milk processing capacity of the Carlisle, Pa., plant.

"This is an exciting development for Land O' Lakes Dairy Foods," said John E. Gherty, Land O' Lakes president and chief executive officer. "The expansion of the Carlisle plant will allow us to enhance the value of more of our members' milk, and it also will increase our ability to provide major East Coast customers with an assured supply of quality butter."

The expansion is projected to increased the plant's raw milk processing capacity from 800 million pounds per year to 1.6 billion pounds per year. The plan calls for the installation of two new dryers, one new evaporator and four additional raw milk silos. Construction is expected to be completed in late December 1999.

"Land O' Lakes decision to expand the Carlisle plant is good news for the cooperative's dairy farmers," said Steve Patience, Carlisle plant manager. "The expansion will allow us to process more member milk into value-added products, thus enhancing overall returns to members."

The Carlisle plant currently processes 3 million pounds of milk per day and manufactures about 25 percent of Land O' Lakes total butter supply. The plant also manufactures powder and condensed milk products, which are sold to confectionary companies and other food manufacturers.

THIS WEEK	2917	1755
LAST WEEK	2628	2019
LAST YEAR	2295	1754

CATTLE: Compared to last week's closing prices, slaughter steers and heifers closed .50 lower. Trading was somewhat uneven, with the strongest market noticed at midweek. This summer's drought is taking it's toll on beef producers in the Mid-Atlantic and Northeast. Virginia cattle raisers are pulling their calves and yearlings off of dry pastures that would normally be grazed well into the fall. Little or no rain over the last two months is also threatening the typically outstanding Lancaster County corn crop. Holstein steer prices ended the week .50 to mostly 1.00 lower. The slaughter cow market closed 4.00-6.00 lower as prices for boneless beef turned sharply down all of a sudden. Slaughter bulls ended 1.00 lower. Supply included 50 percent slaughter steers, 5 percent slaughter heifers, 32 percent slaughter cows, 4 percent slaughter bulls, with the balance made up of feeder cattle.

SLAUGHTER STEERS: High Choice and Prime 2-4 1145-1475 lbs 64.50-68.50. Choice 2-3 1090-1480 lbs 62.50-66.00; 1480-1525 lbs 60.00-63.75. Roundtable Topics Requested For Crops And Tillage Conferences

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — There's no doubt that crop farmers these days face hard questions. Their menu of uncertainty deals with concerns about profitable marketing, risk management, genetic engineering, land preservation, and the right to farm.

But what are the specific questions for which producers want meaningful answers?

That's what planners for two of next year's major annual educational meetings for crop producers would like to know. Both of the meetings are regional events sponsored by cooperative extension at land-grant universities in participating states, with assistance from interested agribusiness organizations.

The 25th anniversary Mid-Atlantic No-Till Conference is scheduled at two locations in the year 2000 — Feb. 24 in the Four Points Hotel at Hagerstown, Md., and Feb. 25 in the Holiday Inn at Grantville, Pa. Dates and locations for the 20th annual Delmarva Corn and Soybean Technology Conference have not yet been established. In recent years it has been held in mid-February at the Wicomico Youth & Civic Center in Salisbury, Md.

Herbert Reed, area extension field crops educator in southern Maryland, chairs the planning committee for the Mid-Atlantic No-Till Conference. He can be reached in the Calvert County extension office at Prince Frederick, (410) 535-3662. Gordon Johnson, extension agriculture agent in Kent County, Del., chairs the planning committee for the Delmarva Corn and Soybean Technology Conference. His office is located at Dover, Del., (302) 697-4000.

Farmers with computer modems may send e-mail messages to Reed at hr5@umail.umd.edu and to Johnson at gcjohn@UDel .Edu.

Both Reed and Johnson welcome inputs regarding the questions that farmers would like to have answered at the respective meetings. Plans are under way to have many of the questions addressed by small groups during informal roundtable discussions. Roundtable representatives would then share answers with the entire audience at each meeting.

Johnson also welcomes questions about when and where next year's Delmarva Corn and Soybean Technology Conference should be held. Should it continue at one location, or should it be held at two or more locations?

Natural Dairy Expo Showcases High Profit, Environmentally Sound Operation

KINZERS (Lancaster Co.) — Spring Wood Farm was the site of the Natural Dairy Expo, a field tour that attracted more than 250 people to hear about everything from the economics of rotational grazing and composting to building soil health and organic crop production.

The Expo, sponsored by Pennsylvania Association for Sustainable Agriculture (PASA), featured the dairy operation "as one of the best examples of sustainable agriculture in the state," according to Tim Bowser, PASA executive director.

Roman and Lucy Stoltzfoos own and operate Spring Wood Farm, a diverse, grass-based dairy in Lancaster County that produces certified organic milk from a mixed herd of about 100. During the field day/expo at the 200-plus acrea farm, Stoltzfoos and five other presenters shared their insights into what makes a grass-based system profitable.

And while they all stressed that each farm is unique — what works on one may not work on another — the basic principle is the same: cows have to eat. Providing them with the most nutritious food, and then helping them make best use of those nutrients in the low-cost way, are key.

In moving to a grazing system or improving one already in use, one of the first steps a farmer must take, according to Stoltzfoos, is to "decide how much you want to make" and then set the goals necessary to achieve that amount.

"Don't copy what I'm doing," he cautioned. "If two are doing it exactly the same, then one is doing it all wrong. Take ideas you find here and use them to see how you can make changes on your own farm."

A goal for Spring Wood Farm is the elimination of grain feeding altogether, Stoltzfoos has come a long way toward realizing that goal. In 1997 he shelled out nearly $87,000 for feed and minerals. He expects that number to be in the $30,000 range by year's end. As his purchased feed costs have decreased, so have other operating costs — budget line items such as vet bills, utilities, fertilizer (gypsum) and lime, even repairs and maintenance. In the same two-year period his gross operating expenses have dropped from $224,180 to $159,260.

Obviously, as Stoltzfoos points out, the cows have to be fed something. At Spring Wood they get plenty of pasture, some corn, and a little oat hay. Keeping the pastures fertile so that the cows get the optimum nutritional value from the grass and other forage is part of the whole-farm system. Barnyard improvements now allow for collection of liquids into a retaining pond — those liquids are then used to irrigate.

"The barnyard was a mess," Stoltzfoos said. "This was a major improvement and we really like it."

He recently purchased a travelling irrigation system as a replacement for 1,000 feet of piping and gun stands. The old system "works fair," he commented, "but you sweat some blood to cover 30 acres."

As for the $25,000 investment — "We'll save at least that much in feed costs," he said. "It's so much more fun to take cows to pasture when there's something there."

During dry weather, as much of the state has experienced this growing season, alfalfa is a "life-saver." Sudan grass also "works sometimes," he noted.

Compost is another pasture improvement tool used at Spring Wood. Composting "is not simple, but it can be done," Stoltzfoos said. About half of what is produced on the farm is used here; the remainder is sold at $65 per ton, making a nice addition to the bottom line. It takes 10-11 weeks for the material to finish. It must be turned daily for about the first month.

As Fred Kurschner, vice president of sales for Wisconsin-based Midwestern Bio-Ag, a co-sponsor of the Expo, pointed out, the more minerals in the plant, "the less rocks you have to feed." There are a lot of different avenues to look at when dealing with soil health and the subsequent health of the cow.

Measure the performance of crops over time, and "don't get too hung up on the numbers (regarding soil samplings)," said Gary Zimmer, also with Midwestern Bio-Ag.

Stoltzfoos had similar advice for those concerned about individual cow production. "Look at how much you can produce on your farm," he suggested.

What's the next step for Spring Wood? Stoltzfoos hopes to eventually go to seasonal production, saying it is "just the way to make a profit.

"What happens when all organic dairies go seasonal?" he questioned. "We'll cross that bridge when we come to it."

Farm Management

RISK MANAGEMENT
Glenn A. Shirk
Extension Dairy Agent
Lancaster County

In the business of farming, there is no shortage of risks and opportunities. When we think of risk management, all too often our focus is primarily on market volatility and the use of futures, options, and contracts, but risk management is much broader than that.

In addition to market volatility, there are the risks of adverse weather conditions, diseases, insect damage, health problems with people and animals, labor shortages, adverse public reactions, and more.

The important question is — how can we protect ourselves from some of these risks? Let's discuss some possibilities.

One of the best risk management strategies is overall good management. It generates more profit and it is less expensive than some of the risk management tools being sold.

The other challenge is to capitalize on risks and turn them into opportunities. For example, we say we enjoy price stability, but if feed prices never fluctuated we would have a fewer opportunities to pick up a good buy when prices drop or to make a good sale when prices escalate.

Managing Feed Inventories

Feed is a necessity on a dairy farm and one of the largest expense items, especially in times of shortages. To help avoid shortfalls and high prices, consider some of the following options:

• Maintian sufficient feed inventories to carry you through periods of shortages, feeding off some of the old inventory and replenishing it to help keep it fresh.

• If you expect upcoming shortages, act early to lock in sufficient quantities of good quality feed before prices escalate, using lines of credit and other available means, such as contracts, futures, and options to take advantage of good buys.

• Reduce herd size to more closly match feed inventories. Cull excess heifers and poorer cows to stretch feed supplies and to make more feed available for the more profitable cows. Avoid the temptation to shortchange cows, especially the good cows, of the feed they need. An alternative to culling cows is to contract them out for someone else to feed until you have enough feed to take them back.

• Avoid the temptation of overgrazing pastures, it can really set pasture productivity back for a long time. A better alternative is to offer cattle supplemental feeds.

• Start early to use forage extenders and alternative feeds to help stretch feed supplies and minimize the need for making major ration adjustments.

Herd Health And Injuries

Losses from disease outbreaks, toxicities, and injuries can be devastating.

• Boost the immune status of the herd with good vaccination and colostrum feeding programs.

• Adopt strict biosecurity measures to reduce the spread of diseases. Maintain a sanitary environment for cattle. Don't let calves come in contact with manure from older cattle. Maintain clean, dry rest areas for cows and protect them from wet, sloppy areas. Insist that visitors and service people sanitize their footwear before entering your dairy facilities, and provide a wash station to help them do this. Keep your herd records in a "safe" area so service people don't have to walk through feeding areas to get to them. Use single-service disposable needles or sanitize needles before reusing them. Maintain a closed herd and minimize the movement of cattle onto and off the farm. Dispose of dead animals in a quick and sanitary manner. Protect cows from streams which can carry organisms and pollutants from farms, businesses and other sources upstream. Control potential disease carrying vectors such as flies, stray dogs, birds, etc.

• Avoid residues and injuries by protecting cows from exposure to toxins and poisons. Store chemicals and drugs properly and comply with label instructions.

• Reduce the risk of mycotoxins. Adopt good ensiling and feeding practices, such as ensiling at proper moistures and chop length, rapid filling and good packing into an air-tight storage, proper feedout rates, good bunk management, good disease and insect control of crops in the field, proper use of preservatives to enhance good fermentation, screening feeds for mycotoxins, etc.

• Prevent metabolic problems such as laminitis, DAs, ketosis, etc. with proper nutrition, good feeding practices, and proper care of transition cows prior to and after calving.

• Reduce injuries by providing cattle with a safe, comfortable environment which includes good footing, sole-friendly surfaces, proper stall design, removing potential hazards from cattle areas, gentle handling, etc.

Adequate Labor

There's no shortage of work on a dairy farm! Cows need to be fed and milked several times a day — every day. A lot of these tasks require experience — something that can be hard to find in many farm workers.

What happens when everyone is carrying a full load when suddenly one of the farm workers falls victim to an unexpected tragedy or suddenly walks off the job without notice? Where's the experienced backup labor force?

Labor is one of the more crucial things to manage on a dairy farm — both family labor and hired labor. Labor makes things happen, and prevents things from happening.

If you were a hired worker, would you enjoy working for you? Are you and your workers conveying the message that your farm is a good place to work, and do you have job applicants seeking you out for employment opportunities?

If you aren't good with people and can't manage them well and don't enjoy managing them, you are at big risk if you expand your business to a size that depends heavily upon hired help, unless you are able to hire a good labor manager and give them the freedom to manage.

Public Image

What kind of image do you and your business convey to the public, and are you at peace with your neighbors and the local power structure? Is your business seen as an asset to the community? Good public relations can be a tremendous business asset.

Managing Your Finances

Chances are, a lot of money passes through your accounts in a year's time. The challenge is to hang on to enough of it to support your family, to lay some aside to create an emergency fund, and to have some to invest in your future. To accomplish this you need to generate enough income and have a good handle on operating and overhead expenses.

How much profit do you need or want per year? Let's say you need $40,000 for family living, and let's assume you ship 2,000,000 pounds (20,000 hundredweight) of milk per year. That means you need $2 profit per hundredweight of milk shipped. If milk prices drop $1 per hundredweight, farm profits would drop from $40,000 down to $20,000. Ouch! Can you reduce your standard of living to that level? If not, do you have a reserve fund you can draw from temporarily until you have the opportunity to replenish the funds?

Now, let's say your goal is to clear $3 profit per hundredweight so you have $60,000 profit per year. That leaves you with some extra monies to "lay aside for a rainy day." That same $1 drop in milk prices reduces farm profits from $60,000 down to $40,000, which is still enough to live on.

So, to reduce your financial risks, one of your goals should be to maintain a comfortable profit margin per hundredweight of milk shipped. If profit margins are too tight, which can happen when you are heavily indebted, even a slight drop in milk prices can wipe you out.

To maintain this 2 million pounds of milk output (and current income level), the farm needs to ship 5,479 pounds of milk per day (2,000,000 pounds per 365 days). In a 100-cow herd, an average of about 15 cows will be dry and 85 will be in milk. Those 85 milkers will need to maintain an average production of 65 pounds of milk per cow per day (5,479 pounds per 85 cows).

If this were your farm, are you meeting your profit margin per hundredweight, pounds of milk shipped per farm, and pounds of milk shipped per cow per day? Do you know? If you're not meeting these goals, do you know why? Is it because of a shortage of income? Are operating and overhead costs per hundredweight of milk out of control? If so, which ones need to be improved? Do you know?

Good records can help you track performance against the goals you have set for yourself. They can help you track costs and itemize cost per hundredweight of milk shipped, as well as determining which farm enterprises are profitable and which ones are not.

Contracts, Options, Futures, And Insurance

Contracts, options, futures and insurance are good risk management tools, but they can never replace all of the good management strategies discussed previously.

'Show Feed' Helps McCauleys Sweep Lancaster Holstein Championship

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

QUARRYVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — After four years, the McCauleys decided to return to the show ring here at the Lancaster County Holstein Show Thursday. To do so would require not only selecting the right cow, but adding special kind of care, according to Tom McCauley.

The care included using what he terms "show feed" (beet pulp and high quality hay), washing the cows which they normally do three to four times a week, and keeping them on pasture and healthy.

At the show at the Solanco Fairgrounds Thursday afternoon, the McCauley family swept the grand championship, picking up the grand with the 100,000-pound class winner, a 9-year-old, New-Direction Star Bambi-ET (S: Hanoverhill Starbuck, D: Metcalfs Valiant Beauty-ET), owned and bred by Tom McCauley and family.

They won reserve of the open show with a senior 2-year-old, New-Direction CC Ballerina (S: Carnation Counselor, D: New-Direction Balloon), also owned and bred by the McCauleys.

The McCauleys care for 60 cows on their Elizabethtown farm, which includes registered Holsteins and about 20 head of Jerseys, Tom McCauley noted. The cows are pastured and the heifers are walked. The McCauleys attend all the major Pennsylvania state shows and have shown in Madison, Wis. and Louisville, Ky.

Star Rock Farms, managed by Abram Barley Jr., Robert Barley, and Tom Barley, Conestoga, picked up best udder of show, champion breeder, and champion exhibitor. The cows have the "show quality we'd like to see," noted judge Mike Heath, Westminster, Md.

In the junior show, grand champion went to Benjamin Welk for his senior 3-year-old, Lovdal Skybuck Elvira (S: Hanoverhill Skybuck, D: MS Lovdal Waden Echo), bred by Warren A. Knutsen.

Reserve of the junior show went to Justin Wivell for his senior 2-year-old, Donegal-Creek Mandel Amy (S: Lutz-Meadows E Mandel- ET, D: Tiny-Echo Jed Alexis), owned and bred by Justin.

In all, the numbers of show exhibitors decreased from last year. There were a total of 78 animals and about 55-60 exhibitors.

Following is a list of show placings.

Lancaster County 4-H Dairy Show Selects Breed Champions

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

QUARRYVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — At the Lancaster County 4-H Dairy Show held at the Solanco Fairgrounds on Wednesday, 90 animals shown by 55 4-H'ers competed.

Numbers were down compared with other years, but quality was fantastic according to Judge Robert Knutsen, Holstein breeder from Rising Sun, Md.

"The type was outstanding, especially the heifer classes," Knutsen said.

Five breeds with both junior and senior divisions were judged. The champion and reserve from both junior and senior divisions competed in the show ring, and from these a grand and reserve champion of each breed was selected.

Holstein

With Lovdal Skybuck Elvira, a 3-year-old, Benjamin Welk took both senior and grand champion trophies in Holstein competition.

"I just got lucky," the 15-year-old said with a shrug. He had showed the same Holstein in last year's competition. Welk claimed to have no secrets for accomplishing that feat two years out of his four years of showing. He bred the heifer and with the offspring also garnered wins for champion dam and daughter, champion owner-bred female, breed champion, and junior champion.

The Solanco FFA student, son of Gary and Donna Welk of Quarryville, also won reserve showmanship honors in the senior division.

Giving Welk competition in the ring was Zach Morrow showing Star-Rock Milan Mangus. Named the reserve senior champion and the reserved grand champion, the Star Rock two-year-old is Zach's favorite.

"I spend more time with it," said Zach, who also said that the win made the day one of the best in his life.

It's the first win in only two years of showing for 19-year-old Zach, Millersville, who is employed by Star Rock Farms.

Nichole Welk, showed the reserve junior champion. Welk-Shade Milan Sabrina is a home-bred senior yearling on her parents' (Mark and Kristina Welk's) Quarryville farm.

DFA Spurs Industry Support of Dairy Relief Inc., Global Hunger Relief

Today's preoccupation with producing more milk, developing new dairy products and making the bottom line work, sometimes causes us to lose sight of real needs. In February, Dairy Relief Inc. (DRI), a nonprofit organization, was formed to help alleviate world hunger by providing dairy products for humanitarian aid.

With its first major grant of $50,000 from Dairy Farmers of America (DFA) and additional support from other dairy and agricultural organizations, DRI immediately began fulfilling its mission of relief here and abroad. Its efforts included:

- Establishing a grant to the Mennonite Central Committee of Akron, Pa., for delivery of nearly 7,500 pounds of nonfat milk powder to schools on the strife-torn West Bank of Palestine;
- Delivering approximately 20,000 pounds of buttermilk powder to Global Bridges, a Texas-based charity, for shipment to needy North Koreans for bread roll production;
- Shipping more than 39,900 pounds of nonfat dry milk to Honduran hurricane victims. (This DRI donation was made possible with the assistance of the David Livingstone/K.U.R.E. Foundation.)

"We've received contributions from many sources," says Tom Townsend, a retired dairy industry executive who serves as DRI vice president and chief executive officer. "Those contributions, along with matching funds from Dairy Farmers of America, have made it possible for DRI to make product purchases and work with other humanitarian organizations to put dairy products where they are needed most."

To date, DFA has matched more than $100,000 in contributions and DRI has generated more than $260,000 for humanitarian relief.

In coming months, DRI will focus on two fronts. "We'll be assembling additional shipments of dairy products and, at the same time, we will be actively seeking new donations," Townsend says. "We plan to reach and exceed our initial fund-raising goals in order to purchase and ship dairy products to hungry and undernourished people around the world. We hope this is only the beginning."

For more information about DRI or to make a tax-deductible contribution, contact Dairy Relief Inc., P.O. Box 1837, Springfield, MO 65801-1837, or talk to your local DFA representative.

Someone is selling these tools to make a profit in exchange for sharing some of your risks. Their profit becomes an added operating expense to you.

That's not to say that these tools should not be used. The point is, don't rely upon them as a substitute for good management. Even with good management, there are risks that are too great for you to assume on your own, especially when you are heavily indebted, profit margins are slim, and you have no financial reserves or liquidity to fall back on. That's when some of these tools are helpful for protecting you, your business, and your family.

Brown Swiss

In Brown Swiss competition, 13-year-old Andrew Smith of King and Queen Farm, Denver, took trophies for senior champion and grand champion.

The 4-year-old, King and Queen Leverage Angelina, had been bred by Andrew's sister Elizabeth.

Scott Kauffman showed the reserve senior champion.

Of the champion Brown Swiss, the judge noted that it was a "really tall milky cow."

Although 18-year-old Sarah Boyd, Ephrata, is on a 4-H trip to Poland, she still attained the junior champion and reserve grand champion titles with her homebred Brown Swiss, KEB Clay View Sens Madonna. Sarah's father Kerry Boyd showed the heifer described by the judge as "tall, angular, very correct, moves well, and full of strength."

"In the 13 years that my kids have shown," Boyd said, "this is the first time they won a junior champion back to back."

The best bred and owned champion Brown Swiss was Fox Rock Prophet, owned by Lori Hess Pequa.

Guernsey

Brian Smith swept the Guernsey competition by claiming the grand and reserve championships in both junior and senior divisions. The grand champion, King and Queen Dividend Rose was also named best bred and owned.

Ayrshire

Katerina Morfesis, Lititz, showed the grand and the junior champion Ayrshire. The grand champion junior calf, Pinelane Reno Pearla, was selected for its "outstanding, very correct, tremendous breed characteristics."

Shawn Hambrick, Peach Bottom, showed the reserve grand champion in both junior and senior divisions. Pineland Rewards Rainspots is an intermediate calf admired for its depth and breed character.

Jersey

Showmanship was divided into three divisions. The top two winners in each division are eligible to compete at the District Show to be held at Harrisburg on Aug. 21. Judge Christine Williams, Lebanon, selected Mike Bollinger and Ben Welk in the 14-18-year-old division; Lori Hess and Cheryl Hershey in the 11-13-year-old division; and Zah Akers and Ashley Wenger, 8-10-year-old division.

The evening before the show, fitting contestants were assigned heifers by drawing lots. After one hour, contestants judged on their fitting talents were placed by Sandy McCauley. Brent Oberholtzer won the senior competition and Aaron Trimble placed first in the junior division.

A partial listing of winners are as follows:

Horsts Earn Distinguished Young Holstein Breeder Award

BRATTLEBORO, Vt. — Kirby and Sheryl Horst of Lynncrest Dairy are the winners of the 1998 National Distinguished Young Holstein Breeder Award.

The 50-cow dairy located in Newmanstown, Pennsylvania, is run by Kirby and Sheryl with the help of their three children Chanelle, Chelsea, and Chad. The herd boasts a BAA of 110.5 and a RHA of 23,552 M.

Kirby strongly believes in registered Holsteins. In an industry with fluctuating cattle and milk prices he feels that, "One constant will always remain – good registered Holsteins will always be in demand."

This commitment to the registered Holstein comes through in all aspects of their business.

The Horsts have gotten to where they are today by focusing on what is important to them and building on past success. Close attention is paid to producing high quality forages for the herd. A key factor to maintaining high production and a healthy herd is good nutrition and this is achieved through quality ingredients for the TMR which is fed to the herd twice a day.

Kirby and Sheryl have worked hard to develop a sound breeding program. They monitor their progress through classification, making sure all the members of the herd see a classifier when they are looking their best.

The herd is classified every seven months. In between times they take advantage of the Breeder's Choice option to insure the cows are seen at their peak.

When evaluating the Sire Summaries, bulls are evaluated based on their meeting the criteria set by the Horsts on udders, feet and legs, fat and protein, and marketability.

Kirby and Sheryl study the proofs carefully and choose six or seven bulls that they feel will work in the herd. "Breeding decisions are so very important and we put a lot of time and thought into each mating," says Kirby. Strong pedigrees are built through concentration in three areas, high type, deep-pedigreed cattle, index cattle and Red and White Holsteins.

Attention to detail has translated into the Horsts being able to maintain a top notch merchandising program.

In the past five years the embryo transfer program at Lynncrest Dairy has resulted in over 550 fertilized embryos. To date 270 of these embryos have been sold to foreign buyers. In addition, they have put 64 bulls into AI across the globe since the herd began. On average they sell 10 to 12 bulls per year to AI organizations as well as a few to local farmers.

The Horsts have been especially successful with Lynncrest Converse Happy, their first homebred VG-89 EX-mammary 2-year-old. Happy has produced 140 fertilized embryos, with more than 60 being sold internationally. They have sold 14 of Happy's sons into AI as well as selling 11 of her daughters. Kirby points out that with Happy's unique sire line up, (Winken X Bell X Boss X Converse) and the number of her offspring around the world, her impact will be felt for years to come.

Kirby and Sheryl continue to set goals for themselves and work hard to meet and exceed them. They both agree that "you can't sit back and let things happen, you have to have to make it happen. We've been making things happen at Lynncrest Holsteins for the past 18 years and are committed to continue that success for years to come."

The Distinguished Young Breeder Award recognizes the accomplishments of young Holstein breeders.

Pennsylvania Winner of National Award

Scott Williams
Training Coordinator

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — Recently Jim Dickrell contacted PA DHIA and informed us that Joseph and Annette Snyder of Union County were selected the winners of the 1999 National Dairy Quality Award. Joseph and Annette own a farm in Union County and had the lowest SCC average in the state of Pennsylvania this past year. Anne Brooks the PA DHIA technician who services this herd throught it would be a good idea and entered the Snyders into the competition. The Snyders will receive a all-expense-paid trip to the World Dairy Expo in October. They will also receive a plaque and be featured in the October issue of Dairy Today. Pennsylvania DHIA would like to congratulate Joseph and Annette on winning this award.

land involves knowing your neighbors and cultivating support. Farmers do cause some undesirable aspects that need understanding. When a farmer works early in the morning and late at night the neighbors need to be tolerant. They also need to know that farms create noise, odors, dirt and dust. They will try to work with the community in creative ways. Communication is needed here.

Viable agriculture keeps the communities healthy. Many boards are filled with concerned farmers The interests of agriculture need to be understood at all levels.

It is time for all of us to examine our lives, asking questions such as: Do I really need all those desirable material things? How can I live more simply? How can I help to distribute the Nation's wealth more equitably.

George P. Lamborn
Nottingham.

Editor:

For your consideration, I would like to submit the following verse. Perhaps we can coax a smile or two from our farm folks.

From the desk of a Rocking Chair Farmer:

There's plenty to do today,
The rake is broke,
My tractor smokes,
And rain is on the way.
"Tis a day I view with dismay.

All that think farming's so neat,
The great outdoors is a treat,
And the good life's so sweet.

To all these folks I must say,
Just try baling some hay on a bad day like today!

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Auction To Benefit Lebanon 4-H

LEBANON (Lebanon Co.) — On Thursday, July 29, the 18th annual Lebanon County 4-H Benefit Auction will be held featuring items sure to appeal to the avid auction goer including farm toys, blooming plants, hand-quilted and crocheted items, gift certificates to area restaurants and businesses and much more.

The auction is a successful fund-raiser for the county 4-H development fund and organizers hope to raise more than $4,000 this year. The Lebanon County 4-H Board of Directors coordinates the event and contacts more than 100 area businesses and craftspersons for donations.

The auction will be held from 6 to 9 p.m. in the North Hall of the Lebanon Area Fairgrounds, Cornwall and Rocherty roads, Lebanon as part of the Lebanon Area Fair. The money raised helps to fund educational materials, member and leader activity fees, transportation costs, and awards for the county's 1,200 4-H members and 141 adult volunteer leaders.

While the majority of items appeal to the general public, many ag businesses have donated items which will be of specific interest to farm famililes such as animal feed and health supplies. For fun and entertainment there are movie tickets and farm toys as well as more traditional items such as cookbooks, tools, and collectibles.

If your business would like to be included as part of the auction, it is not too late to make a contribution. To make a donation contact the Lebanon County Extension Office at (717) 270-4391 between 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m.

Lebanon County 4-H summer assistants Emily Phillips, left, and Sara Yorty preview items that will be up for bid on Thursday, July 29, at the annual Lebanon County 4-H Benefit Auction held at the Lebanon Fairgrounds.

Bureau Urges Help

CAMP HILL (Cumberland Co.) — the head of a statewide farm organization has called on Gov. Ridge to seek "all possible avenues" of state and federal assistance to help farmers facing a drought disaster.

Guy Donaldson, an Adams County fruit grower and president of the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau, submitted the request in a letter to the governor.

"As you are well aware, 59 counties in the state are already under a drought warning and the remaining counties are under a drought watch," Donaldson stated in the letter. "Agricultural crops in many areas of the state have already been significantly damaged and some areas are experiencing total devastation by what is being proclaimed by local meteorologists as the driest weather conditions in over 30 years."

Donaldson said a statewide drought disaster such as what is presently being experienced, "could not come at a worse time for Pennsylvania's farmers. Farmers and orchardists are experiencing low commodity prices across all aspects of Pennsylvania's agricultural production."

The drought being experienced in the Mid-Atlantic regions will do

Better, Groomed 4-Year-Old Rises To Forefront Of FFA Dairy Show

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

NORTH CORNWALL (Lebanon Co.) — Before competition at the 44th Pennsylvania Southeast District Junior Dairy Show began Tuesday morning, Cedar Crest FFA member and sophomore Jared Zimmerman, Lebanon, chose another cow.

Last year's cow didn't do much for him. This time, a better cow, one that "stayed clean in the freestall," said Jared, proved magical at the dairy show Tuesday afternoon at the Lebanon Fairgrounds.

Jared, 16, son of J. Calvin and Thelma Zimmerman, Lebanon, showed a 4-year-old, HI-VU Mountain Loretta (S: Bis-May S-e-L-Mountain-ET, D: Philli-Bey Bell Louise), bred by Bradford and Carla Phillips, Bryant Pond, Maine, to senior and grand champion at the show.

Reserve was presented to Lynette Heffner, Robesonia, Conrad Weiser FFA member.

This time, said Jared, he spent extra time, walking the cow and giving better feed, in addition to hours grooming the animal before showtime.

"I washed it at home two times before the show began," he said, clipping and combing it.

Judge Rick Hess, feed consultant, said he enjoyed the cow's "dairy character and cleanness and flatness of bone throughout," in addition to excellent udder. Both senior champion and reserve stayed in contention throughout, making it hard for the judge to decide.

Hess said both were nice heifers with "good balance," he said. "The two individuals are nicely balanced, stylish dairy animals."

This was Jared's first champion at the district show. He plans to show next week at the Lebanon Fair and, if all works out, at the upcoming Pennsylvania All American Dairy Show in Harrisburg.

Jared noted he would like to attend Farm Show next year, something he has not been able to do.

Lynette J. Heffner, Robesonia, won reserve overall with her 4-year-old, Fantasyland Charls Fire-Red (S: Boulet Charles-ET, D: FAntasyland Skybuck Flint), bred by Fantasyland Holsteins.

Lynette, daughter of Martha and David Pool, has finished her freshman year at Penn State, where she majors in food science.

This is the third time she has won junior champion of the Holstein Show, with a fall calf, Fantasyland Delaware Cameo (S:Mansion-Valley Delaware, D: Fantasyland Sky B Cashmiere), bred by Lynette.

Lynette, Conrad Weiser FFA, said that she will be showing at Kutztown Fair and at the All American. She shows beef animals at Farm Show.

Reserve junior champion went to Timothy David Vail, Lebanon, from Cedar Crest, with a summer yearling, DALEE-BRED Encore Gidget (S: Marcrest Encore, D: Pineriver Dalebred Glory). The animal was bred by Tim.

Judge for the colored breeds contest was Alan Hostetter, Holstein breeder.

Ayrshire champion overall went to Rebecca Elizabeth Nolan, Cochranville, for Dreamnol Trident Freckles, a 4-year-old (S: Ardrossan EV Kates Trident, D: Conebella Johnny's Freda). Reserve went to a 4-year-old shown by Craig Anthony Nolan, Cochranville, Dreamnol Teddy Bear Lindy (S: Muellers BBK Teddy Bear, D: Dreamnol Banner Lyn).

Champion Brown Swiss went to Kristen I. Moyer, Womelsdorf, for her junior 2-year-old, One Hill Preview Abigail (S: R Hart Protein Preview, D: Elm Brook JPR Abbey), bred by Kristen. Reserve was awarded to Amy M. Moyer for her summer yearling, One Hill Patrol Sunshine (S: Top Acres PR Patrol-ET, D: DML Simon Snowstorm Sarah), bred by Amy.

Champion Guernsey went to a senior 3-year-old shown by Andrew G. Ebersole, Lebanon, Lisiter Farm Nobles Laura (S: Lisiter Farms V, Noble, D: PEB L. Brook F. Lorie), bred by John E. Dupont, Newton Square. Reserve went to a 4-year-old also shown by Andrew, Lebanon Valley Valient Rita (S: Tamaracks Perfecto Valient-ET, D: Lebanon Valley B Stephanie), bred by Jacob N. Smith and Son, Annville.

Jersey champion was shown by Patrick Jenkins, Toughkenamon, for a dry cow 2-year-old and over, WRF Noble Sundance (S: Master Surville Noble, D: Vandenberg Dynamo Sunshine), bred by Bryan and Patricia Huff, Cochranville. Reserve was shown by Joel Bomgardner, Lebanon, for a senior 2-year-old, Sonnylee Alf Sarah (S: Comford Royal Alf-ET, D: Salute Apollo Sorina), bred by Joel.

Alan Hostetter also judged the showmanship contest. Judge for the fit-out contest was John Bomgardner, Holstein breeder.

Gov. Ridge Declares Drought

charge until the leaves are off the trees and we get sustained rains in the fall. That means we still have two months of hot, summer weather to endure — before the fall rains begin to replenish our reserves."

The Pennsylvania Emergency Management Council, chaired by Lt. Gov. Mark Schweiker, is required by law to meet within the next 72 hours to receive the Governor's declaration and to review any necessary actions to assist affected communities under drought emergency.

The Governor's proclamation allows state and local agencies to expedite their responses to the affected communities to ensure continued protection of public health and safety. It allows agencies to hire, purchase and contract without the usual bid requirements. The declaration also allows communities to implement mandatory water-conservation measures; implement local drought emergency plans; and enforce water-conservation measures.

The Governor's proclamation also allows water suppliers, with the approval of the Department of Environmental Protection (DEP), to implement local water-rationing plans in the event that conditions get even worse. The Pennsylvania Emergency Management Council must approve these water-rationing plans.

In a drought emergency, mandatory water-use restrictions may include: no serving of water in eating places unless requested by the customer; closing down of indoor and outdoor water fountains, artificial waterfalls and pools; and residential and business rationing.

"The mandatory restrictions put in place by the drought emergency target non-essential water uses first: watering lawns; topping off or filling swimming pools; washing cars except with a bucket," Gov. Ridge said. "If we all do our part by using common sense and conserving water, we can make sure we protect our water resources for the fall and winter ahead.

"If these measures don't reduce consumption, rationing could go into effect. Rationing is the last resort."

Members of the state's Drought Task Force recommended last week that the Governor issue a drought emergency proclamation by the end of the month in the Delaware, Susquehanna and portions of the Ohio river basins, due to record-low groundwater and streamflow levels.

DEP Secretary James M. Seif said that one third of the state's groundwater monitoring wells record record-low seasonal levels in June. Twenty-one of the state's 50 monitoring wells currently are at emergency levels. More than 40 stream gauges in the Delaware, Susquehanna and Ohio river basins measured record low daily flows during May and June. Precipitation deficits are continuing to grow in most counties with long-range forecasts predicting well-below normal rainfall in most parts of the state.

Agriculture Secretary Samuel E. Hayes Jr. said that, while it's too early to put a dollar amount on agricultural losses due to drought, the Pennsylvania Agricultural Statistics Service reports farmers in some counties are reporting as much as a 20 percent reduction in milk production in some areas because of heat- and drought-related conditions.

Hayes said that pastures in poor condition are forcing farmers in some areas to begin to supplement feed and field corn used for livestock feed continues to show signs of distress such as leaves curling and corn "tasseling" early in some areas.

The current drought period began this winter when Gov. Ridge declared a drought emergency in 14 counties in the central part of the state. That emergency declaration was lifted in March and, since that time, the entire state has remained in either a drought watch or warning status.

More information, including new videos on how to care for lawns and gardens during a drought and saving water inside the home, is available from the state's Drought Information Center on the state's website at www.state.pa.us or directly at www.dep.state.pa.us.

were on hand to show their support for agriculture.

"It's important to come out and look around," said Redding. "It's easy to get caught up in the issues. People are here to support agriculture, but they're also here because there is a farm. There would be no farm-city day if there was no farm or no city."

Redding also noted that supporting farmers does more than protect open spaces.

"When we recognize and support this industry, we not only support the economic base, but we support us — feeding the United States and ourselves. We have a lot to be thankful for in this country, not the least of which is agriculture."

Jim Bender, Lancaster, tries to identify the Christmas tree maladies at the exhibit sponsored by Zimmer Century Tree Farm. Fifteen trees, ranging from a healthy tree to one infested with Spruce Spider Mite to one killed by Allegheny Mount Ants, were displayed.

Sen, Roger Madigan echoed Redding's comments. "It's so important as we look to the next Millennium that we make an effort to educate the local neighbors and city friends," noted Madigan.

Madigan also praiseed the passage of the dairy compact as a tool to raise farm level income.

"Everyone else, whether they make a widget or a gidget, gets to set the price for that product. With dairy farmers, they produce the milk and 45 days later they find out what they'll get for it."

Farm-City Day

teins average about 15,000 pounds of milk. There are also 25 replacement calves and heifers.

The family raises about 25 acres of corn and 45 acres of hay but must buy additional hay since the expansion of a manufacturing plant took some of their cropland. During the haying season, their daughters and sons in law also help on the farm.

A former New York State Star Farmer, John Ogden and his mother moved to the present farm in 1948 from Addison, N.Y. After his mother died in 1950, John farmed alone. He made many friends in the area and actually met his wife, Sandy, who was also a neighbor, at a Dairymen's League meeting.

In 1961, John and Sandy were married. While farming together, they raised four daughters, Daureen Alice, Deborah Ann, Darlene Agnes, and Deniese April. Another daughter, Dorinda Amy, passed away when she was 22 days old because of a heart defect.

The loss of a daughter was not the only tragedy the Ogdens have experienced during their farming tenure. In 1970, the original barn burned, taking with it the majority of the milking and replacement animals.

The fire was discovered by the milk hauler who found a single bale of hay on fire. The hauler immediately notified Sandy and ran back to the barn to get the hay bale out of the barn. Sandy notified the fire company and then went out to help release all the cows. When the fire company came, they thoroughly checked the barn and found no further signs of fire, so the Ogdens put the cows back in the barn, milked them, fed them, and settled down for the night.

Around 10 p.m., a neighbor called and told them their barn was on fire. This time they lost the entire structure and all but two cows.

To make matters worse, the fire marshal determined that the fire was deliberately set.

The Ogdens milked replacement cows at a neighboring farm until their barn was rebuilt in 1972.

In addition to farming, Sandy is employed by the Northern Tioga School District as a custodian. John is a 50-year Grange member and they are members of the Holstein Association and Dairylea Cooperative.

Many other organizations joined in the day's events, manning educational exhibits, food booths, and a registration table.

One popular stop was the animal petting zoo. Children of all ages enjoyed cuddling the baby chicks, goats, rabbits, and chickens. A horse and a baby calf were also on hand to give visitors an up close look at farm animals.

Another exhibit was designed to educate consumers about the pests Christmas tree growers fight to produce a perfect tree. Wool-spinning demonstrations, milking demonstrations, machinery exhibits, and a wagon tour of the farm as well as other activities were also part of the day's events.

Event Chairperson Bonnie Keil thought the day was a "tremendous success," she said. "We had a steady flow of people all day and we had a great location. We attracted a lot of people not related to agriculture. That was the intent of the day, to share and educate people about agriculture and to give them some information. I think we accomplished that."

John Ogden agreed that the event was a success. "Everything went well. We had a good crowd and everyone's happy," he said at the close of the day.

Plans are already under way for the 10th anniversary farm-city day to be held at Sunset Mountains Farm in Delmar Township, hosted by Doug and Jenny Lawton and family.

Volunteers make farm-city day possible. Here announcer Jim Welch, also known as "The Farmer from Mansfield," talks with event chairman Bonnie Keil.

Bureau Urges Help

little to boost commodity prices nationally, Donaldson said. "Nonetheless," he added, "our Pennsylvania farmers will not only experience little returns from their investment in raising crops, many will now have to purchase feed for their dairy and livestock production.

"I urge your prompt action in seeking all avenues of assistance to help mitigate the severely negative financial impact on our state's agricultural industry created by the current drought situation," Donaldson wrote the Governor.

Pennsylvania Farm Bureau is a voluntary, statewide organization which represents more than 27,000 farm and rural families.

Birds Of A Feather

Turkeys were once part of most family farms and were raised outdoors on pasture. Today they have been taken off the range, stuffed (tens of thousands) into confinement houses, and supported with heavy inputs of feed supplements, growth enhancers, climate control, and reproductive support. To make sustainable production economically feasible, genetics will be needed that are different from the current industrial type.

The American Livestock Breeds Conservancy (ALBC) has published a book that explores available alternatives. "Birds of a Feather: Saving Rare Turkeys from Extinction," identifies rare breeds of turkeys that maintain genetic diversity. This new and visually appealing book fills an important need since no comprehensive text has been published on breeds of turkeys since the 1950s.

"Birds of a Feather: Saving Rare Turkeys from Extinction," tells the story of turkeys during the past 2,000 years. The book includes a history of the turkey, tracing its movement from the wild to its domestication by Native Americans; its migration to Europe and return to North America; and its further selection for farm and modern industrial production. Modern intensive selection for a broad-breasted white turkey has dramatically increased the productivity of the species. In the process, the colorful and self-sufficient traditional varieties have become endangered. Of the 10 species of domestic farm animals that are the focus of the American Livestock Breeds Conservancy's work none is more genetically eroded than the turkey.

"Birds of a Feather" is available from the American Livestock Breeds Conservancy for $21.95 plus shipping/handling. (Per copy shipping is $4 for U.S. orders.) Send orders with payment to ALBC, P.O. Box 477, Pittsboro, North Carolina 27312, USA. To order by credit card call (919) 542-5704, FAX (919) 545-0022 or e-mail <albe@albusa.org>.

Senior 2-Year-Old Holstein Is Supreme

GAY BROWNLEE
Somerset Co. Correspondent

MEYERSDALE (Somerset Co.) — A senior 2-year-old Holstein born on October 16, 1996 was looking her finest at the Somerset County Dairy Show July 13.

Not only did TKT Rosedale Natalie win grand champion honors in the Holstein breed, but was also named the show's supreme champion over the remaining five dairy breeds.

Type judge Joe Stitt from Martinsburg, Blair County, acknowledged later that as soon as Juliana Hillegass of Berlin, lead Natalie into the show ring, the beautiful cow caught his eye.

"The senior 2-year-old," he said, "topped a group of extremely fine cows — her style, her balance and her mammary system."

She is a daughter our of Rosedale Lindy-ET and TKT Leadman Prim-ET. The breeder was Kirk Hillegass, Berlin.

In an unusual announcement, Stitt placed Wendy Jo Rose's grand champion Jersey in the position of honorable mention.

The Hollsopple teen-ager's junior 3-year-old named Roses Pepper Magic was born March 4, 1996 out of HL Duncan Pepper and Roses Hermitage Missy and bred by Shallow Run Farm, New Florence.

The Holstein reserve champion was a senior 3-year-old, Destiny Charles Julie, shown by Philip Petenbrink of Garrett. She was born October 28, 1995 out of Boulet Charles-ET and Destiny Blackstar Jem. She was named best animal bred and owned.

Kristi Michael from Meyersdale showed the Jersey reserve champion, a senior 2-year-old named Italia Farms Fright who was born November 6, 1996 out of Comfort Royal Alf-ET and Italia Farms Fear. The breeder was Angelina Poligardo from Meyersdale.

Meredith Murray, Salisbury, in the Milking Shorthorn breed showed both the grand champion and reserve champion. The grand champion was in the dry cow two-year and over class. Tudor Hall Cranapples was born November 11, 1995 out of Twin Elm Geo-P and Tudor Hall Cherry. The breeder was Joseph Amon Grantham, Kearneysville, W. Va.

The reserve champion was a spring calf born last April.

A summer yearling shown by Eric Murray, Salisbury, was the grand champion Ayrshire entry. Vinemont Evermonde Emma is out of Melody-Lane Evermonde and Vinemont Galen-Guinevere Breeder was Tabb, Lylec and Sons, Inc., Kearneysville, W. Va.

Wade Coleman, Berlin, had the reserve champion Ayrshire with a junior 3-year-old named Kemerer-Farm Wildfire Jasmine, born March 10, 1996 out of Bonnie Brae Heligo and Eureka Mozart's Wildfire. The breeder was Matthew Kemerer from Latrobe.

The Brown Swiss grand champion was Four D Trishs Sandy shown by Lance Bittner from Berlin. Born January 10, 1994, Sandy is out of Top Acres Combo Preston-ET and Four D BLL Trish. The breeder was Robert Foor, Berlin.

The reserve Brown Swiss was shown in the six years and older class by Nathan Tressler, Rockwood. IE Tresslers Shelly was born May 2, 1993, a daughter of Johann Pete Rose ET and ID Tresslers Flow. Jack Tressler, Rockwood, was the breeder.

A Friedens young man, Justin Kaufman had both the grand champion Guernsey and the reserve champion. A winter calf born January 1, 1999 was named grand champion. Just in Loral Lacey is out of Trotacre Mercury Loral-ET and Gregs Laura. She also was best animal bred and owned.

Just In Henry Emma, the reserve champion, was shown in the winter yearling class.

"The show in general was as quality show," Stitt commented after the 165 animals were judged. Bill Compton from Clarksburg judged showmanship.

Bob Brown, extension agent from Somerset County, estimated that the show was bigger than usual.

"This was the biggest show we have had in about 10 years," he reported.

EQUAL HOUSING LENDER

Ninety-year-old Ray M. Sattazahn is surrounded by family members who actively promote agriculture. His son Clarence and wife Marlene farm in Womelsdorf; his grandson Kevin and wife Sherri with children Brett, 8, Tyler, 6, and Jenna, 3; another grandson Kirk, and granddaughter Karen and husband Steve Mohn with daughter, Ashley, 5.

Sattazahn Family Continues Farming Legacy

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

WOMELSDORF (Berks Co.) — Sattazahn farms dominate the Womelsdorf area. And the name Sattazahn is linked to many noteworthy achievements.

The source of all this success stems from 90-year-old Ray M. Sattazahn, grandfather and great-grandfather to the clan.

"I can still do a day's work," he said with a twinkle in his eyes. "But it takes me five days to do it."

Looking back over years of farming, Ray sees farming embracing what he calls both good and bad ideas. The good is the technology that enables tasks to be accomplished easier and faster. The bad is that farmers are pressured to get bigger before they can comfortably handle the labor and financial costs.

Ray knows what it is to start small. When he was eight years old, he was assigned to milking one cow daily.

"I was told that I did such a good job that I was soon assigned more."

In 1932, Ray started farming on his own. He began on a 30-acre farm as a tenant farmer. He recalls thrashing wheat with a binder and being paid 75 cents a hundred pounds for milk. The going price at that time was 90 cents, but he wasn't paid that because the milk truck didn't make a stop at his place and he needed to take it to a neighboring farm for pickup by a trucker that charged him 15 cents a hundred.

The infamous revolt of dairy farmers against Hershey Chocolate is a historic event that Ray clearly remembers.

"I was there. I saw the troopers coming on horses," he said.

The revolt was quieted by an organized union.

In 1934, Ray bought his first farm with a verbal agreement between himself and the owner. It's the same farm where he lives today with his son Dennis, wife Betsy, and their twin 14-year-old sons Douglas and David.

It has a 1932 stone gabled barn with painted yellow wood and an 1850 house.

Ray said that in 1949, when he started registering cows, he needed a prefix. The extension agent suggested he call the farm Zahncroft, meaning home farm in German. Later, he bought another farm, which his son Clarence now owns. That was named Zahnheim, another German word for homeplace.

In the beginning of his farming efforts, Ray said that he added more cows whenever taxes went up. Cows were milked by hand.

"It got to the point that it took so long to milk that I felt like quitting," he said.

But the workload eased in 1940 when Ray purchased a two-unit milking machine. About 20 years ago, he installed a automatic pipeline milking unit that runs the milk into a bulk tank.

"You have better control of individual cows. You can spot problems quicker," Ray said of the pipeline system.

Two years ago Ray milked his last cow. Now his daughter-in-law Betsy milks.

"She doesn't know it, but I check up on her every day," Ray said. "She's a good worker."

Although Ray no longer milks, he still does milkhouse cleanup every evening.

Ray has numerous ribbons for corn. "This soil is the best for corn in Berks County. It holds moisture

Ray continues to help his son Dennis and wife Betsy and twin grandsons, Douglas and David, on the first dairy farm he purchased in 1934.

Pennsylvania State Young Dairy Leader Kirk Sattazahn encourages young people to develop leadership skills

Dairy Leader Trains Others

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

WOMELSDORF (Berks Co.) — Kirk Sattazahn loves the dairy industry. His goal is to inspire others to love it as much as he does.

The 27-year-old grew up on a Womelsdorf dairy farm and was active in 4-H and FFA.

But it was the Governor's School for Ag Sciences that opened his eyes to the many possibilities the dairy industry holds for young people.

Sattazahn went on to study ag business at Penn State and is a Sire Power representative for Maryland, West, Virginia, and the southern Pennsylvania area and continues to help on the family farm. But he has never forgotten how much the Governor's School influenced his passion for agriculture and honed his leadership skills.

For this reason, Sattazahn become a member of the newly-formed Governor's School of Excellence alumni board. This group is helping organize alumni around the state.

"It's amazing how so many of the former students went on to become local, state, and national leaders, professionals, and successful farmers," Sattazahn said.

Last February Sattazahn attended the Young Dairy Leaders Institute (YDLI) in Florida, a gathering of young people in the states with a strong interest in the dairy industry.

The YDLI program immerses participants in ag-related issues. Each class continues two years, beginning and ending with the Florida Institute five-day program.

About 80 people are selected annually from the U.S. to attend the Institute. About half of the participants are involved in production farming and the other half are involved in dairy industry. Although YDLI signifies "young" in its name, Sattazahn said that some participants are as old as 40 years.

"Age is no factor as long as you are young at heart," he said.

During the five-day Institute, nationally reputed speakers teach leadership, business, and dairy technology skills and hold informative legislation sessions.

Participants are then expected to contact media and other community leaders to serve as a resource for questions concerning the dairy industry. The leadership and knowledge acquired through the Institute equips them to be reputable spokespeople for the dairy industry.

Sattazahn was recently interviewed on radio station WJTL's "Real People Week." For one hour, Sattazahn explained the

OMESTEAD OTES

behind-the-scenes duties of raising dairy cows and issues related to the dairy industry. This helps the non-farming audience better understand farmers and their stand on controversial issues related to dairy farmers.

Sattazahn shares a lot of his knowledge gained at the Institute with farmers he meets through his Sire Power job. He stresses that farmers must be knowlegeable about the seriousness of Johne's disease in dairy cattle.

"Farmers should take advantage of the government financial incentives to test herds and attain certain levels of certification. Farmers and the industry must work together."

Unfortunately, he believes that many farmers are slow to make changes because they believe that one farmer can't make a difference. Some have the attitude "get everyone else to do it, and then I will."

Sattazahn believes that the dairy industry sells itself short when it comes to marketing. Milk, he said, should be bottled in colorful containers to make it more competitive with soda.

Sattazahn said that it has always been a family joke that he should open an ice cream shop. It's an idea that he may eventually incorporate because he'd like to start his own business related in some way to ag marketing.

In February 2000, Sattazahn will again attend the five-day Institute to report on his activities and to give imput into how the program can be improved.

Concerning his participation in the Governor's School alumni board begun this year, Sattazahn said that alumni are being used as resource speakers for current schools and encouraged to present the program whenever and wherever possible. Alumni can offer up-to-date information on job opportunities and direction to the industry. The internal group will keep track of and network with other members.

Many people are unaware the Governor's School offers diverse studies for animal physiology, food biology, computer, water quality, remote sensing and topography, veterinarian, environmental studies, genetic engineering, social science, biotechnology, insect ecology, economics, nutrition, plant science, and land use planning. New this year is the information technology course, which capitalizes on Internet opportunities. Students who participate in the Governor's School essentially receive one month of college education.

Sattazahn helps part-time on his parents' Clarence and Marlene Sattazahn's dairy farm. The Zahncroft Farm encompasses two farms where 300 plus acres are cropped, and milk 100 registered Holsteins using a carousel parlor.

Of the farm's rolling herd average of 20,000 pounds, Sattazahn said, "We concentrate on being profitable first rather than attaining high numbers."

The Sattazahns did their first embryo transfer work last year.

The herd is fed a total mixed ration and AI bred. Cows are pastured a few hours a day, but not grazed.

The Sattazahns raise corn and alfalfa as their primary crop. Rye and wheat are considered secondary crops. Large round and square bales are used to reduce labor costs.

Sattazahn concentrates on the business end of the family farm while his dad takes care of the cows, crops, and operates a custom combining business with his uncle.

While some leaders are doomsayers considering the family farm, Sattazahn said that he thinks both small and large farms can continue to be successful if managed correctly.

Sattazahn has also been named the Pennsylvania State Young Dairy Leader, selected by Penn State dairy and science undergraduates as the person they think has done the most to advance the dairy industry and to support the club.

Sattazahn is still active in Penn State's Dairy Science Alumni Club and chairs the alumni honorary ag fraternity of Alpha Zeta.

In addition to agricultural-related opportunities, Sattazahn has had another exciting development. His team won the softball tournament for state competition and will participate in national competition in Texas in September.

"Softball is my biggest stress reliever," Sattazahn said.

He also works as a DJ for many weddings. "It's a growth industry," he joked, "because many of my friends are getting married."

Of his many achievements, Sattazahn said, "I place a lot of faith in God. I'm blessed with meeting great people and having many opportunities. I see myself involved with the dairy industry for the rest of my life, with cows, people, and hopefully married."

Those interested in knowing more about the Pennsylvania Governor's School of Excellence Program or Alumni Board, or the Young Dairy Leaders Institute, can contact Sattazahn at (610) 589-2479 or e-mail Sattazahns25@aol.com.

Sattazahn Family

even when it is dry." A crop-saving characteristic many years, and especially needed during this year's drought.

Ray's first tractor was a 1937 Allis Chalmers. Today he is delighted that his son Clarence and wife Marlene have had the tractor restored and enter it in local tractor shows.

The transition from horses and mules to tractors was a welcomed one.

"When it was hot, we no longer needed to take out the horses," said Ray, who has a picture of him using Belgian horses and mules.

In 1956, Ray remembers purchasing his first combine.

Although his wife Elsie died 24 years ago, Ray refers to her often.

"Look around here," Ray said of the 140-acre farm, now owned by son Dennis and his family. "My wife deserves the credit for everything you see. If it wasn't for her, I wouldn't have gotten this. She husked fieldcorn by hand and was right up there with the best of them."

Because he is in good health at 90 years, people often ask him abut his diet.

He said that he ate a dozen eggs on Easter. "But I can't eat cheese," he said. "Know why?" I don't like it," he explained.

But don't worry, this dairy farmer said of consuming his own product, "What I don't eat in cheese, I make up in ice cream."

He also claims to be a heavy drinker. "Of water," he clarifies.

He uses honey, not sugar.

"I drink some liquor but don't overdo it," he said.

While most people rely on clocks for telling time, Ray said, "I can tell the time by where the sun is positioned at the locust tree."

In addition to his son Dennis, his other children include his oldest son Ray Jr. and wife Betty, retired farmers; son Clarence and Marlene, who farm two adjoining farms; Mary, who is retired and lives in Virgina, and son Robert and Jane, who farm in Womelsdorf.

Marlene and Clarence live in a house built in 1854. The German bank barn is made of stones with vent holes. The former Amish residence had no electricity, when they moved in so they milked with a tractor generator until electricity was installed.

The couple started out with 24 cows tied in a staunchion barn, using a dumping station and bulk tank.

In 1973, the couple was the first in the township to install a carousel milking parlor on wheels. They also erected adjoining barns and three silos.

Son Kevin and his family live on an adjoining farm, and Kevin works as the herdsman for his father and makes breeding decisions. Their youngest son Kirk is Pennsylvania's Young Dairy Leader, the Penn State Young Dairy Leader, and a Sire Power area representative.

Marlene and Clarence were named 1981 Berks County Outstanding Farm Family.

The family is active in Marion Grange. Clarence is a voting delegate for Sire Power. His hobby is collecting "big and little tractors" and farm toys.

Four generations of the Sattazahn family gather around the 1937 Allis Chalmers, the first tractor that 90-year-old Ray used for farming. With him are son Clarence, granddaughter Karen, and great-granddaughter Ashley Mohn.

Both he and his wife enjoy attending toy shows.

"I grew up with Allis Chalmers but I have more John Deere in my collection," Clarence said.

This year Clarence and Marlene will celebrate their 40th anniversary in Hawaii.

Marlene is a charter member of the Berks Society 5 of Farm Women for 35 years. Daughter Karen is also a member.

Their daughter Karen was the county dairy princess in 1980-1981. Although she and her husband don't live on a farm, her parents depend on her help.

"We give an SOS, and she comes at a moment's notice," her mother said.

The grandparents are thrilled that Karen's and her husband Steve's daughter Ashley is the Berks County Dairy Little Miss.

"Ashley knows more about farming than people twice her age," Grandpa said proudly.

The four Sattazahn farms share equipment.

Ray, patriarch of the clan, said the secret for generations of family to work together is to be open and discuss things early.

"My dad has helped us all get started in farming," said Clarence, one of his four sons.

When Ray is questioned about why he is so generous in helping his children and grandchildren, he counters with the question: "Isn't that what fathers are for?"

Ray's devotion to his family is honed by his own experience of having a father who paid little interest in him. It wasn't the lack of financial assistance that bothered Ray.

"He never came to visit me, never saw my farm," Ray said.

Ray strives to be the father he never had. He spreads encouragement, wit, and a positive attitude wherever he goes.

"The trouble today is that too many want to farm big," Ray said. "Some farmers are greedy and get more cows and then can't handle what they have."

He said that he never forgot a story called "I Got Too Big," which he read years ago in a agriculture magazine. That farmer had been successful and could pay his debts, but he wasn't satisfied. So he got more cows and got deeper in debt and ended up losing everything.

Ray said that he agrees with his son Dennis' slogan: "I don't want to be big. I want to be better."

Ray said that often when he reads articles on other farmers it looks as if everything is cream. "I didn't find it that way," he said.

"I couldn't afford big equipment. My parents didn't help me, so I needed to do two days work in one."

Although farming has been hard work, Ray said, "I don't know where all the years went, but if I had to do it all over again, I'd be milking cows."

"I can still do a day's work," said Ray, who rides from farm to farm on this four-wheeler. "But it takes me five days to do it."

Farm Women Societies

Berks Society 1

Society 1 of Farm Women of Berks County held its May meeting at the home of Donna Haas. Gerry Marsteller, president, called the meeting to order. Instead of scripture reading, a moment of silence prayer was observed for the people of Oklahoma and Kosova, and was followed by the flag salute and the Lord's prayer.

Eighteen members attended the Spring Rally held in Mechanicsburg. On May 28, group members traveled to Hunterdon Hills, New Jersey, to see a show called Branson '99.

Acts of kindness will be observed with a donation to Habitat for Humanity in Berks County.

Berks Heim Fest will be held Sept. 12. The state convention to be held Jan. 2000 will remain at one location for the all-day event instead of holding sessions at the Forum and the banquet at a hotel.

Members played Bingo for entertainment.

The June meeting was held at the home of Joan Haas, who read Psalm 1, followed by the Lord's prayer and the flag salute.

Speaker for the meeting was Matt Harley, a police officer of Amity Township.

The next meeting will be a doggie roast held at the home of Evelyn Heacock.

Summertime Salads

Salads are more popular than ever. It's no wonder. Salads are light, fresh, crisp, and healthy, and above all else versatile.

Few other foods can creatively start off a meal, serve as a side dish, top off a dinner or even star as the main entree.

Wonderful green, pasta or even meat-based salads can support a nutritionally balanced diet and offer a fanciful and hearty alternative to traditional supper fare. As side dishes, salads complement all kinds of entrees. There's always a place for sensational salads on the lunch or dinner plate.

Home cooks are preparing their favorite salads with everything from turkey, chicken and beef to vegetables and fruits over a variety of lettuce. And with the surge in popularity of convenient, prepackaged salad greens found at grocery produce counters, salad preparations are easier than ever.

Flavored and blended with tantalizing dressings and topped with taste teasers like croutons, bacon bits, and a variety of rich cheese blends, salad combinations are plentiful and diverse.

CREAM CHEESE SALAD

Dissolve 2½ tablespoons plain gelatin in ½ cup cold water. Bring to a boil 1 cup crushed pineapple and 1 cup sugar.

Add gelatin mixture to pineapple and stir until dissolved. Chill until slightly thickened. Add 8-ounces softened cream cheese and a few marachino cherries, cut in pieces.

Fold in 1 pint whipped cream and place in refrigerator until ready to serve. Serves 10-12 people.

Baby carrots peeled from bigger bites

How do they make those baby carrots that are already peeled?

Ah, convenience foods Aren't they wonderful? And when they help you reach your goal of eating five servings of fruits or vegetables a day — well, it just doesn't get any better than that.

As you've probably already guessed, most bite-sized carrots are not miniature varieties of your favorite crunchy orange vegetable. Although there are some carrot varieties that mature when they're tiny, it is more difficult to process those carrots to end up with a standardized size.

Most ready-to-eat carrots start out as varieties that mature when they're 6 to 8 inches long. They are grown closer together than usual to stunt their growth. Processors wash them in chlorinated water and cut them to their familiar, uniform 2-inch size, then put the pieces through a processor that spins them, massages off the rough exterior and rounds the cut edges.

The carrots are not treated with heat or chemicals, and they normally do not contain any preservatives So, to preserve them as long as possible, they are refrigerated between 34 and 36 degrees At that temperature, they can last 29 days. If they're mistakenly stored above 40 degrees, they'll lose a day of shelf life for each degree above that temperature.

To further prolong their freshness, processors of "minimally processed produce" can use something called "controlled atmosphere storage," in which some of the oxygen is replaced with carbon dioxide or nitrogen or a mixture of both. This slows down the vegetable's respiration — the process in which a plant cell breaks down carbohydrates to supply energy. Believe it or not, even though this produce is out of the ground and in plastic bags, its cells continue to "breathe," as does any cut plant. Removing oxygen helps keep them in good condition.

While fresh-cut carrots are more expensive than their traditional counterparts, the convenience of just opening the bag and opening your mouth is no small consideration. And you can thoroughly enjoy them, knowing that 3.5 ounces contains only 43 calories, 3 grams of fiber, two to three times your daily dose of vitamin A, plus about 15 percent of your daily need of both vitamin C and potassium

On Being a Farm Wife (and other hazards)

Joyce Bupp

Why would you plant lima beans, Mom?

You can buy a bag of them, frozen, ready to eat, at the supermarket. For about a buck and a half.

That was the sensible reasoning I heard a few weeks ago after mentioning my aim to plant lima beans in a still-vacant row in the garden. The stretch of veggie patch, between the stringbeans and the plastic-mulched section coddling the tomatoes, peppers and melons, begged to be filled with something.

It's been several years since I grew lima beans. For several reasons.

No room. Too late until I thought about it. Undependability.

Lima bean plants are temperamental. They fail to set bud under certain conditions, or the buds dry up in the heat, or wash off under downpours. Then you have to pick and tediously shell out the results. And that's if the seed has decided to germinate and push those fat bean sections out of the ground to begin with. Which it sometimes won't.

Why indeed would I waste time on these unpredictable things?

Because, when everything "works," fresh lima beans are garden gourmet treat. Frozen ones are good, but fresh ones are wonderful. Cooked until tender, lightly salted and tossed with a generous lump of melting butter.

What more reason would one need to plant lima beans?

The same question might be leveled at squash. Why in the world plant them?

After all, nearly everyone who gardens has an overflow of zucchini or yellow summer squash. Squash they would readily share. In fact, if you have the right neighbors, you can probably eat your fill of squash without ever planting a seed.

Several of our garden's vigorous squash plants are volunteers germinated from last year's aged ones tossed on the compost site. Some appear to be hybrid crosses between green zucchini and yellow summer squash, shaped like the curved-neck yellow squash with a distinct greenish color underlying the yellow, or sections of green with the yellow. Perhaps we could dub them Intergalactic Alien Hybrid Squash and find some Star Wars movie summer promotional tie-in for marketing them.

Even as I ponder what to do with them all, I hope they don't up and die from the usual "squash wilt."

And why cultimate the watermelons I've so tediously watched, co-planted with a marigolds to fend off insects, dusted with lime against marauding rabbits, carefully weeded and watered, when local markets sell large, tasty ones so reasonably.

Because we like certain varieties, like the deliciously-sweet, refrigerator-sized Sugar Baby, and the wonderfully firm and tasty Yellow Fellows, as we call them and the solid, deliicate-flavored honeydews. Yellow melon is truly gourmet, but usually carries a matching per-pound price at retail level. Besides, there is a particular challenge in growing melons that I enjoy.

We have tomatoes — home-started, purchased and volunteer stalks — because we love them so much. Sure, you can buy canned tomatoes cheap, but I prefer my own home-canned ones. Plus, we've become serious devotees of homemade salsa for dipping and as a cooking ingredient. With plentiful tomatoes, why not?

Our patch includes asparagus because no others comes close to our fat, tender, just picked stalks. Cukes because I like them younger and smaller than most found in stores. We even have giant sunflowers for no other reason than to watch them zoom up in growth and to delight our backyard birds.

One thing not planted in the garden are some specialty seeds, from a "Cow Starter Kit" sent earlier this year by New Jersey reader Lynn Ebeling. These "cow seeds" are suspiciouly-shaped like ordinary lima beans, but sport black spots on them in a classic "Holstein" look.

If only it would be that easy to grow replacement heifers.

On the other hand, given the mess cows can make of a garden, would we really want to plant them there on purpose?

ANSWER — N. King, Lititz, wanted instructions on how to prepare a pig stomach. Thanks to Valerie Olesh, Bethel, for sending her mother's recipe.

Stuffed Pig Stomach

1 pig stomach, thawed, rinsed, drained
1½ -2 pounds fresh bulk sausage
3 or 4 raw potatoes, diced
1 raw onion, chopped

Mix sausage, potatoes, and onion together. Stuff mixture into stomach and sew openings closed, using cotton thread. Valerie uses a skewer and weaves it closed. Bake at 350 degrees for about 2 hours or until skin is golden brown. Cool 10-15 minutes before removing thread or skewer. Slice with a very sharp knife, as the skin is slightly tough. Serve. This may be served as a main dish or add side vegetables.

ANSWER — Marilyn DeMeyer, Hilton, N.Y., wanted recipes for salt rising bread. Thanks to Margaret Strause, Leesport, for sending this recipe. She writes that if you cannot find nondegerminated stone-ground cornmeal in the supermarket, look for it at health food stores.

Salt-Rising Bread

Starter:
2 medium-sized potatoes, peeled, sliced thin
1 quart boiling water
¼ cup nondegerminated stone ground cornmeal
2 tablespoons sugar
1 teaspoon salt

Sponge:
1½ cups milk
Above starter
¼ teaspoon baking soda
4 cups all-purpose flour

Dough:
6 cups all-purpose flour
2½ teaspoons salt
6 tablespoons vegetable shortening
Above sponge

To make starter: Put the potatoes in a large bowl, pour boiling water over, then stir in commeal, sugar, and salt. Place bowl in large bowl of hot water, and set in a warm place where the temperature remains fairly steady—a gas oven with just the pilot light on or an electric oven with the interior light on, or on top of the water heater. Replace the hot water two or three times—or whenever you think of it and it's convenient. Let set for 24 hours. Then remove potato slices from the bowl, and make the sponge.

To make the sponge, heat the milk until it is lukewarm, add to the starter, along with the baking soda and 3½ cups flour. Beat briskly until smooth—a hand rotary beater helps smooth out the lumps. Cover with plastic wrap and again place in larger bowl of hot water. Set in warm place and let the sponge double in bulk, takes about 2 to 3 hours, but check at 1½ hours. When doubled, it will look creamy and light. Don't let it set longer after it is creamy and light or it will lose its "cheesy" flavor and become sour.

To make the bread dough: Put 4 cups of the flour in a large bowl. Add the salt and mix lightly with a fork. Drop in the shortening and blend it in with your fingers as though you were making pie dough or until the mixture looks like fine meal. Add the flour mixture to the sponge and beat until well mixed. Add enough more flour (1 to 2 cups) to make a soft, manageable dough that can be kneaded. Turn out onto a floured surface and knead for one or two minutes. Let rest 10 minutes.

Resume kneading until dough is smooth, about 10 minutes. The dough will be heavy and putty-like. Divide dough into thirds and shape each piece into a loaf. Place in greased pans. Cover with plastic wrap, set the pans in a larger pan of hot water, and again set in a warm place to rise. This final rise will take about 3 hours, and the loaves should increase in volume by about one third. This is less than the usual doubling in bulk. Bake in a preheated 350 degree oven for 45 to 55 minutes, until golden brown. If in doubt, better to bake a few minutes longer than underbake. Turn out of pans and cool on a rack.

Salads

TACO SALAD SUPREME

1 pound lean ground beef or turkey
1 medium onion, chopped
3 cloves garlic, minced
3 teaspoons chili powder
½ teaspoon ground cumin
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon cayenne pepper
1 cup salsa, divided
2 tablespoons vegetable oil
6 cups torn mixed salad greens
1½ cups Cheddar & Pepper Jack Cheeses, divided
1 small tomato, diced (optional)
1 cup coarsely crushed tortilla chips

Cook beef, onion, and garlic in large skillet over medium heat until beef is no longer pink, stirring occasionally; pour off drippings. Sprinkle 3 teaspoons seasonings over beef mixture. Add ¾ cup salsa. Simmer over medium-low heat 10 minutes, stirring occasionally. Add water, a tablespoon at a time, if mixture becomes too thick.

Meanwhile, in small bowl, combine remaining salsa, oil, and seasonings; mix well. In large bowl, toss salad greens with 1 cup cheese and oil mixture. Arrange on four serving plates. Spoon beef mixture over salad; top with remaining cheese, tomato, if desired, and tortilla chips.

SUMMER BEAN SALAD

2 cups dry Great Northern or Navy beans
2 cups dry black beans
2 cups dry lima beans
2 cups dry red kidney beans
2 cups dry pinto beans
1 large red onion, diced
2 red bell peppers, diced
1 bunch cilantro, cleaned, chopped
1 pint olive oil
¼ cup balsamic vinegar
¼ cup fresh lime juice
Fresh black pepper
Salt
Cayenne pepper

Soak each variety of beans separately overnight. Drain and rinse beans. Put each variety in separate pots and cover by at least two inches water. Cook each variety separately for 10-15 minutes or until soft, drain, and let cool.

Mix all the beans together, except black beans. Add the black beans just before serving, otherwise they may bleed and make all the others black.

Add the onions and pepper, olive oil, balsamic vinegar, and lime juice. Season with pepper, salt, and cayenne pepper to taste. Add the chopped cilantro and black beans right before serving. Toss and enjoy. Serves 8-10.

Cooking tip: To eliminate lengthy soaking and cooking time, substitute canned beans for dry beans.

Boomers Feeling The Financial Squeeze

Many baby boomers' bank accounts are feeling a squeeze as parents scrounge together college tuition funds. Even with financial aid and new government grants, parents often still find there's not quite enough in the savings account to handle these large bills comfortably.

Unfortunately, college expenses are not these adults' only financial strains. At the same time that many boomers are launching children, they are also dealing with rapidly-approaching retirement and changes in their parents' health. These pressures, added to normal family stresses and strains, may cause some families to throw up their hands in exasperation.

If you're about ready to give up, here are a few strategies to add to your game plan that may lighten the financial load, and emotional strain. First, don't shy away from expecting your child to contribute substantially to their education. Having to work while in school forces a person to be more organized and responsible. These are good qualities to encourage in a child.

Also weigh the options of having a child attend a community college, commuting to a nearby four-year institution, or taking a year off to work and save money before enrolling in another year of classes. As "un-fun" as these alternatives seem, many successful professionals have obtained degrees this way. Be willing to honestly answer the question, "What am I paying for?" — your child's education or a few years of freedom, entertainment, and relaxation? Accept that sometimes a parent is not supposed to have the role of being fun and saying the easy thing. Sometimes a parent's job is to make a tough, necessary decision.

At the other end of the family financial spectrum, there are a few adjustments that can also be made. If you or your spouse are enrolled in a retirement plan, talk with your benefits department about increasing your contribution slightly. Each year between now and your retirement, increase the percentage of dollar amount that you put in. Starting with an increase of $25 per month is not insignificant. Every bit helps and your employer may match that contribution.

Finally, take a few hours to learn about resources to bridge the gaps of service for your parents and their needs. I was shocked to read that the rental rates of apartments in retirement/assisted living communities in our area range from $900 to $3,000 per month. Without some planning, these kinds of expenses are out of reach for most families. Take time to find out what other options are available to your family if your parents need assistance.

Check with your employer, Are you eligible to take some leave or work a lighter schedule to absorb some of the responsibilities? The Family Leave Act, passed several years ago, applies not only to new moms and dads but to people dealing with aging issues, too. Contact your county Area Agency on Aging or read AARP literature to find out alternatives with insurance and government programs.

I recently learned about "KePRO," an organization in Pennsylvania that was established to protect the rights of Pennsylvanians receiving Medicare. A peer review organization of the Pennsylvania Medical Society, its services are free to Medicare and Medicare HMO recipients.

Many seniors do not know about this organization. And the children of aging adults are in a crucial position to advocate for the benefits that are available to their parents. For instance, if your parent has just had a major operation and is being discharged earlier than you think is appropriate, you have a right to appeal that decision through KePRO. You do this by getting a notice of the anticipated discharge in writing from the hospital (Hospital Notice of Noncoverage) and then calling KePRO immediately at 1-800-322-1914. Once the letter has been issued and you have called KePRO (even if it's on a weekend when you simply left a message), the hospital may not discharge you until KePRO conducts a review. If upon review, the physician decides you need more hospital care, Medicare will pay.

This is only one example of where reading and advocacy may save your dollars and result in better care for your family.

It's hard to stay up to date on all the programs out there to help baby boomers with their financial obligations, but I encourage you to use some time this week to discuss options and put some thoughtful plans in place for your family so that you aren't saddled with unnecessary debt.

Cook's Question

ANSWER — Carrie Sponseller, Gettysburg, wanted a recipe for Snow Flake Cookie mix in a jar. Thanks to Cathy Fritz, Wesminster, Md., for sending a recipe.

White Chocolate Macadamia Nut Cookies

1¼ cups sugar
½ cup chopped macadamia nuts
3 (1.4-ounce) white crunch candy bars, coarsely chopped (press this layer firmly)
2 cups flour mixed with ½ teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon salt

Layer ingredients in order given in a 1-quart wide-mouth canning jar. Press each layer firmly in place before adding next ingredient.

Baking instructions:

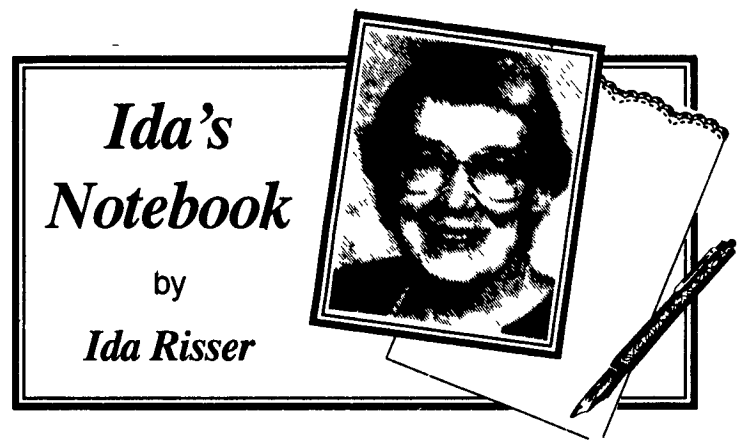
Empty cookie mix into large mixing bowl. Use your hands to thoroughly blend mix.

Add ½ cup butter, softened.
1 egg, slightly beaten
1 teaspoon vanilla

Mix until completely blended. Dough becomes stiff; you will need to finish mixing with your hands to make a smooth dough.

Shape into walnut-sized balls. Place 2-inches apart on sprayed baking sheets.

Bake at 375 degrees for 12 to 14 minutes until tops are very lightly browned. Cool 5 minutes on baking sheet. Remove cookies to racks to finish cooling. Makes 2½ dozen cookies.



Recently, we revisited a place that we had not seen for 50 years. Many years ago we went there for a Rural Youth conference. And, it was there that we expected to spend our wedding night but a very big snowstorm intervened. So, we had to stay at my parent's home.

We traveled on a bus with a senior citizens' group to see a play, "Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat" at Allenberry Playhouse near Boiling Springs. It was a loud and colorful production. Of course, the luncheon beforehand was an attraction too.

On Sunday, my husband, son, and grandson took me along on a hike in a dense woods. My husband is very interested in finding an American chestnut that died many years ago and then sent up sprouts. The fellows hiked for miles in Martic Township, over land which Allen's ancestors owned, but found none.

I did not follow them but rather waited beside a shallow stream. However, I did discover, by walking along it, that it ran between huge boulders and formed a small waterfall. The silence was spoiled by a group of noisy campers. But, they were there first.

Despite the very dry weather, my sugar peas gave a bountiful second crop. A week ago we finally took the pea fences down as I was tired picking them. My red beets got too big this year but are still tender. Soon I must make more freezer cole slaw as many cabbage heads are maturing at the same time. With a garden or rather gardens, there is always work to be done.

Berks County Little Dairy Miss Ashley Mohn Has A Job To Do

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

WOMELSDORF (Berks Co.) — Five-year-old Ashley Mohn is the Berks County Dairy Li'l Miss.

That's a large title for a little girl and a big responsibility, but one that she loves.

Her title means that she goes along with the Berks County Dairy Princess to visit schools, supermarkets, malls, and other places to encourage people to drink milk and use more dairy products.

Although she doesn't live on a farm, Ashley spends many days on her grandparents', Clarence and Marlene Sattazahn's, dairy farm. Ashley's parents, Steve and Karen Mohn, help milk the 100 cows every other weekend.

Karen was the former 1980-1981 Berks County Dairy Princess. She is delighted that Ashley is finding out how exciting milk promotion is.

Ashley said that she enjoys looking at the scrapbook filled with pictures of her mom as a dairy princess. She also likes trying on her mom's old tiara.

Ashley now has her own sparkling tiara and banner. She hopes when she gets old enough—at least 16—that she will be crowned a dairy princess.

Ashley likes to take her purple cow to promotions and recite the words to the poem, "I never saw a purple cow, I never hope to see one. I can tell you anyhow, I'd rather see one than be one."

Ashley said that her mom recited that same poem when she was five-years-old. At that time, Little Misses were not selected, but Karen recited the poem for a Marion Grange activity.

Ashley's dad was also a Grange member and that's how her parents met each other. Ashley's Pop Pop Charles Mohn is the retired master (president) of the Grange and as a hobby, works two mules, Jack and Jake.

"Know what's better than ice cream?" asks Berks County Little Dairy Miss Ashley Mohn. "More ice cream."

Ashley's parents share in driving her to the many promotional activities in different parts of Berks County. She said that Dairy Princess Michelle McMichael and Alternate Cindy Bray are like two big sisters to her.

Karen and Ashley belong to the Marion Grange and dad Steve to the Virginville Grange. The family enjoys the many activities and friendships they make through it.

Karen is an elementary school librarian for the ELCO School District. She is delighted that her daughter will be part of a dairy promotion program planned for students at the Wolmesdorf Library.

Dad Steve had his own claim to fame at last year's Pennsylvania State Farm Show when he won first prize in the cheese-carving contest. He carved a train engine from cheese in keeping with the contest's theme, "Behold the Power of Cheese."

In the fall, Ashley will be a kindergartener at Conrad Weiser Elementary School. She takes dance lessons, rides bike, helps in the garden, and plays with Barbie dolls. Her favorite dolls are the "got milk" and "Ice Cream" Barbies.

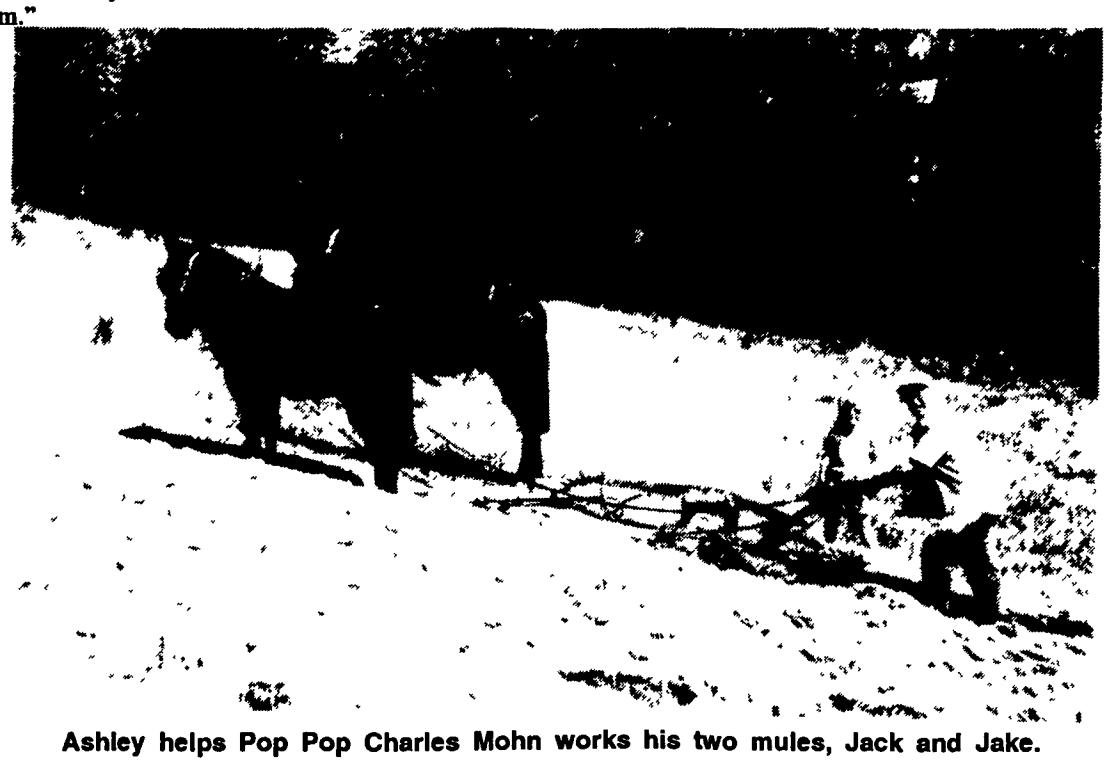
Ashley loves eating White American and string cheese, chocolate ice cream, and yogurt.

"Know what is better than ice cream?" Ashley asked. "More ice cream."

Ashley and her cousins, Brett, 8; Tyler, 6; and Jenna, 3; spend a lot of time with this calf, which is Brett's first 4-H project.

Ashley rides her own tractor on the farm.

During Kids' Day at Esbenshade's Greenhouse, Bill Styer regales more than 200 children with facinating facts about reptiles. He showed them a gopher snake, a python, an alligator, a lizard, and a box turtle for those who were scared of snakes.



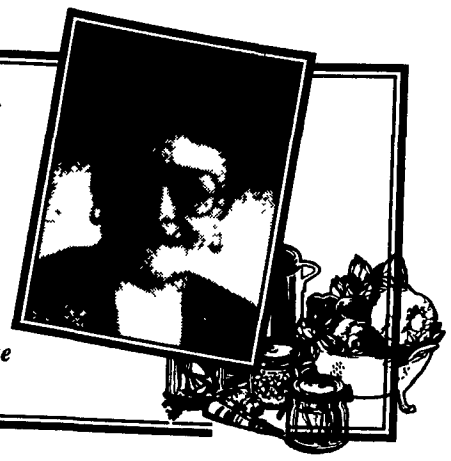
Ashley helps Pop Pop Charles Mohn works his two mules, Jack and Jake.

Consuming Thoughts

by

Fay Strickler

Penn State Extension Home Economist For Berks Co.



Americans have discovered that seafood fits right in with contemporary lifestyles; it is convenient, quick to prepare and is nutritious. Seafood is rich in protein, vitamins and minerals, all essential for good health. What's more, it is naturally lean.

Most seafood is also low in cholesterol. Contrary to earlier beliefs, recent analyses show that mollusks such as clams, mussels, oysters, and scallops are also low in cholesterol. While the crustaceans — lobster, crab, and shrimp — have slightly more cholesterol (about the same as in the dark meat of chicken, somewhat higher for shrimp), they are low in total fat and moderate portions can be easily managed in a low-cholesterol diet.

High in Protein — Seafood is an excellent source of protein. It contains all the essential amino acids that the body cannot manufacture but must get from food. Generally speaking, a four-ounce portion of cooked fish will provide half of the protein the body needs each day to build and replenish itself.

Furthermore, it is easily digested protein. Depending on the kind of fish, 87 to 98 percent of the protein is utilized because of the nature of the muscle fibers precent in seafood. That makes seafood an ideal source of protein for people of all ages.

Rich in Minerals and Vitamins — Seafood is a particularly rich source of minerals, though amounts vary according to the kind of fish, and where and when it is caught. Fish contains most of the chemical elements naturally present in sea water, like iron, copper, fluorine, and calcium. In particular, sardines and canned salmon are two excellent sources of calcium. For instance, a three-ounce portion of sardines (with bones) contains about 371 mg. of calcium and a three-ounce portion of canned salmon contains 191 mg. of calcium.

Seafood is the richest source of iodine as well as potassium, two minerals required for proper body functions. The oils present in fish are the richest known sources of fat-soluble vitamins A and D.

The sodium level of fresh and salt water finfish is comparable to other animal foods such as beef and chicken. Shellfish have slightly higher amounts of sodium, but they can be included in most sodium restricted diets in moderate amounts. On the other hand, canning or curing fish adds salt. Commercially prepared frozen fish dishes are often high in sodium, while plain fresh or plain frozen fish present no problem for people on reduced-sodium diets. It is always advisable to read the package labels for processed or prepared fish dishes to detect sodium content.

The greatest virtue of seafood, is that it is low in total fat and calories. A four-ounce raw portion contains about 100 calories.

In addition, seafood lends itself to low-calorie preparation. It can be poached, baked, or steamed with your favorite herbs and spices; or it can be grilled and just lightly brushed with oil to keep it moist. Fish pairs well with other low-calorie foods, such as light sauces and steamed vegetables.

Cholesterol and Omega-3 Fatty Acids — Seafood is generally low in saturated fat, suggesting that it can help lower cholesterol levels in the bloodstream. Most seafoods are relatively low in dietary cholesterol including mollusks, which were once considered "High" in this substance. The Omega-3 fatty acids in fish may actually lower the triglycerides in the blood. In large quantities, they also help prevent the formation of blood clots.

Cholesterol is a waxy substance that is manufactured in small amounts by the body. It is carried to and from the body organs and tissues in protein envelopes; the entire package is called a lipoprotein. Low density lipoproteins (LDLs) deliver cholesterol to the organs; high density lipoproteins (HDLs) carry the excess away.

Cholesterol is necessary for certain body functions, but when too much of it gets into the bloodstream, it tends to form fatty plaque deposits on the walls of the arteries and the blood vessels lose their elasticity. In this condition, known as Atherosclerosis, the blood vessels become narrow and clogged. When arteries carrying blood to the heart are blocked, a heart attack can take place; if those to the brain are involved, a stroke may occur.

Eating more seafood in place of traditional high fat foods can lower the risk of cardiovascular disease, primarily by reducing the intake of total fat and saturated fat.

Dairy Council Works To Close Calcium Gap

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Thirty health professional organizations and government agencies agree — America's in calcium crisis. The groups met during a national Calcium Summit held in Washington, D.C., in late June.

Their conclusion? People should close the calcium gap through dietary solutions, including increased milk and dairy consumption.

The Calcium Summit was sponsored by National Dairy Council® (NDC) and the Milk Processors Education Program (MilkPEP). During the Summit, participants formed a coalition to urge consumers to "Drink 3" glasses of milk or their equivalent to close the calcium gap.

To reach local health professionals, Dairy Council Middle Atlantic has launched a health professional campaign to position itself as the local calcium and nutrition information resource. Dairy Council Middle Atlantic, NDC's local affiliate, hosted an educational display at the Summit to showcase Dairy Council services and materials. The local Dairy Council also sponsored a continental breakfast for all attendees and informed them of its geographical region, which includes Washington, D.C., and the surrounding Middle Atlantic region.

"The large number of people attending NDC's Calcium Summit proves that health professionals are hungry for more information on calcium's's benefits to our bodies," said Pat Kennedy, Dairy Council's Health Professional Program Specialist. "Dairy Council Middle Atlantic looks forward to helping them educate and motivate consumers to meet their calcium needs with dairy products."

National Contest Selects Lancaster Farming Employee's Cookie Recipe

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

LITITZ (Lancaster Co.) — Whenever anyone would tast Karen Hoffer's Soft Sugar Cookies, they would rave about the cookies being the best.

So it was only natural when Karen, who works in advertising/sales for Lancaster Farming, heard about the national contest search for the "Cookie of All Cookies" that she entered the recipe passed down through four generations of her family.

Although Karen did not win the top prize in the contest sponsored by "Taste of Home" magazine, her recipe was one of those selected out of 34,000 entries to be printed in the newly-released cookbook, "Best Of Country Cookies."

This was not the mere decision of contest judges, but from 7,000 "subscriber-tasters" who actually stopped by the magazine's headquarters to taste test and rate the cookies.

According to Reiman Publications, the magazine's food staff thoroughly screened all the recipes to select the most promising. The cookies were then baked in the test kitchen at the Reiman Publication Visitor Center, Greendale, Wis.

Visitors to the center were invited to taste-test up to a half-dozen recipes baked each day. Each tester filled out a "Judge's Rating Sheet" to specify the best tasting cookie.

The magazine's food editors then singled out the top 13 recipes for prizes and 277 additional entries to be featured in the new cookbook.

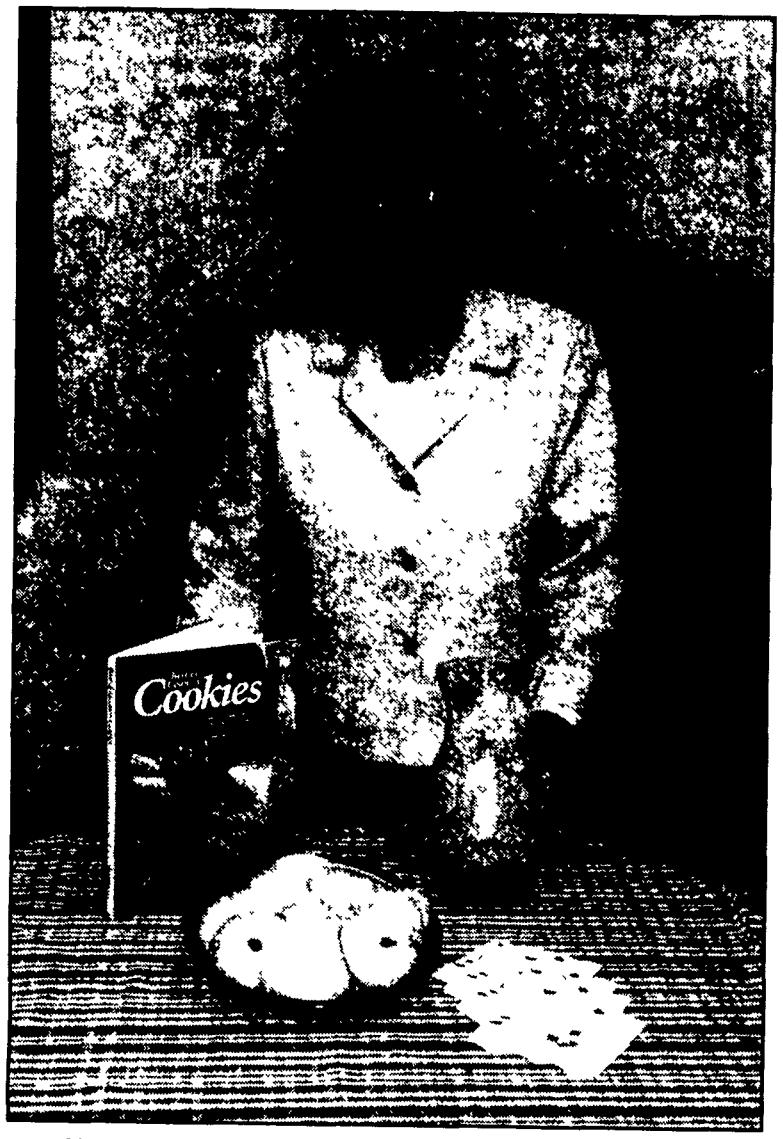
The recipe by grand prize winner Marcia Severson from Minnesota is not included in the cookbook. Instead the recipe will be kept secret and sold at the Reiman Visitor's Center.

Called Mmmminnesota Munchers, the grand prize cookies will be touted as the "Taste of Home Cookie," with the hopes that it will become nationally famous. If plans work out, Mmmminnesota Munchers will also be sold through other outlets around the country.

Out of the 277 recipes printed in the cookbook, 15 were submitted by Pennsylvanians. Chapters include an appealing assortment of shaped, sandwich, cutout, one-pan, cut-and-serve bars and brownies.

"This was my first time entering any contest," said Karen, who lives in Lititz with her husband Dave and yellow lab dog Luther.

Karen remembers her mother Ruth Keller mixing the batter the night before and storing it in the refrigerator overnight. She would then get up in the morning and bake the cookies.



Karen Hoffer, who works in advertising/sales for Lancaster Farming recently got her claim to fame when her sugar cookie recipe, passed down through four generations, was selected from 34,000 national contest entries to be included in "Best of Country Cookies" published by Taste of Home magazine.

Ironically Karen insists that her cookies do not taste as good as her mother's, although they both use the same recipe.

Regardless of who makes them, this recipe is hard to beat as proven by the contest taste testing.

The vibrant-colored pictures in the 116-page hardcover cookbook and the easy-to-read type with tidbits of information about each recipe promise to be one the most successful cookbooks on the market.

To order a copy of the book, send $15.99 plus $2.50 for shipping to Taste of Home Books, Suite 4190, P.O. Box 990, Greendale, WI 53129. Credit card orders may be placed by calling 1-800-558-1013. When calling, specify item number 27619.

Here is Karen's recipe, courtesy of "Taste of Home's Best of Country Cookies."

Crawford County Selects Royalty

SANDY BRADLEY
Bradford Co. Correspondent

GROVE CITY (Crawford Co.) — Stacey Lynn Agnew, newly crowned dairy princess for Crawford County, proved during the pageant that success doesn't always mean having the answers. As part of the competition, held last month in Springboro at the farm of Janelle and John Greene, contestants were asked to list what three items they would take on a solo five-year trip into space.

Although responses included a variety of things from photos to Bibles, Stacey said she would take a stuffed cow (to remind her of home) and "two other very important things," which , she confessed, she couldn't think of just then — but would think of when and if the time came.

As well as entertaining the audience with the honesty of her answer, Stacey's skit garnered applause as she posed in cow-patterned prison garb behind makeshift bars, explaining why she had stolen dairy products and sharing with "visitors" her personal affects, which included educational posters depicting various dairy products and a mobile made from pint-sized milk jugs.

Another way in which she failed to "go straight," Stacey confessed after the pageant, involved helping out on her family's farm while she was trying to memorize her presentations. "After I had my speech and my skit written," she said, "I was out cutting and raking and I was trying to memorize my stuff — so my rows weren't very straight. I got picked on a lot for it!"

Representing the fourth generation on Richmond's Dairy Farm, Stacey said her dairy background began at birth, when her aunt and grandparents provided her childcare in between farming duties. Her family farm sits on a little more than 300 acres and includes a 70-cow dairy herd and about 20 head of beef, Stacey said, and her grandfather, Dale Richmond, lives a mile away and is currently milking about 30 cows. All of the six major breeds are represented at Richmond's, she said.

In addition to helping with farm chores, Stacey is secretary of her local FFA chapter. Although she has belonged to FFA for about three years, she just began showing when starting high school. Her show animals include one Brown Swiss, one milking shorthorn, two Ayrshires, a Jersey, and one market hog. She has participated in the Harrisburg junior dairy show in both 1997 and 1998, and will participate in this year's district show in Butler.

When asked who and what she values in life, Stacey points to family as top priorities in both cases. "My grandpa would be number one," she said. "He always tells me to do my best, and even if I don't win — I always know that I tried my best." As far as what's important to her, Stacey said, "probably my family. I don't know what I would do without them."

Crawford County Dairy Princess Stacey Lynn Agnew lives on a fourth generation family farm where all six major breeds are represented.

Looking for new ways to increase your vegetable consumption?

Looking for an easy but tasty way to fix the wonderful assortment of vegetables coming to harvest?

Recently, I tried oven roasting an assortment of root and summer vegetables with great success. They were a big hit with everyone who tried them, and I have since made them for a larger group of folks I was feeding.

I like the method because while it is not really fast, it is easy to pop the vegetables into the oven while the rest of the meal is happening. The dish is also very forgiving if you are not ready to eat exactly on time. One more thing to recommend it is that picky eaters can select the vegetables they like from the assortment. Don't be shy about trying some of the newer varieties of vegetables. I tried the bright purple eggplant appropriately called "Neon" for my roasted vegetables combination and found it to have few seeds and a vary tender skin that is definitely edible.

What do you need to roast vegetables?

All you need is an oven and a shallow pan large enough to hold the chunks of veggies in a single layer. I used a large sheet pan or jelly roll pan. The bottom of a broiler pan would work, too. Avoid deep sides if you can. Preheat the oven to 425-450 degrees.

How long does it take?

Depends on the specific vegetables, the size of the chunks and your personal preference for doneness.

Longer cooking vegetables (taking 30 minutes to 60 minutes) include beets, carrots, mushrooms, onions, parsnips, rutabagas, turnips, winter squash. Potatoes with skins on add color and texture. A waxy type of potato such as red skins works very well. Portabella mushrooms cut into big slices or wedges or the small brown Cremini mushrooms work especially well but whole or halved white mushrooms will work well, too.

Medium cooking vegetables (15 to 30 minutes) include eggplant, fennel, garlic cloves, okra, bell peppers, chilies, summer squash, tomatoes, zucchini.

Quick cooking vegetables (10 minutes to 15 minutes) include asparagus, corn, lima beans, peas and string beans.

Cut the veggies into even-sized pieces. If you mix veggies with different cooking times, vary the piece size or add them sequentially as the roasting time passes. Do not cut them into very small pieces, they will turn to mush. Roast them until they are fork tender and brown. Shake or stir the pan a couple of times as they bake.

The assortment I used include: red potatoes with the skins left on cut into chunks, chunks of onions, large chunks of carrots, small or medium Cremini mushrooms cut in half, eggplant with skins left on cut into cubes about 1½ inches, thick crosscuts of small zucchini squash with peel, thick sticks of yellow summer squash with peel. I placed all in a large bowl and tossed with virgin olive oil with basil added to the oil. There are a number of varieties of this seasoned olive oil in the stores. Plain oil can be used also.

Be stingy with the oil — it adds 120 calories per tablespoon. Use about 2 tablespoons of oil for 4 cups veggies. (If you have an oil misting spray gadget, this could be a good time to use it.)

Pour the vegetables onto the baking pan, sprinkle generously with seasoned salt. I like to use Jane's Crazy Salt which is flaked salt with added herbs. Roast the vegetables for about 45 minutes until lightly browned, stirring one time.

When cooked, the vegetables can also be dressed with a vinaigrette dressing and bit of grated cheese or crumbles of Feta. You could also add a dash of Balsamic vinegar before cooking or wait until they are cooked and add a dash of other more delicate vinegars and herbs.

I didn't add any of these extras after roasting. I might do that after the novelty wears off. We loved them just the way they were.

These roasted vegetables are also good served the next day at room temperature added to salads. (You would have refrigerated them overnight, of course.)

They can also be reheated quickly in the microwave. My guess is that this will not be an option because you will have eaten them all at the first opportunity. This is a good way to increase your vegetable consumption. Enjoy!

ANSWER — Levi Tyler, Meshoppen, and others are having problems with green scum on their ponds and want the barley straw solution reprinted. Here it is: Researches confirm that straw reduces algae growth in ponds. Barley straw works best, but wheat straw and even cornstalks are effective, but they need to be applied in larger amounts and more frequently than barley straw. For severe algae problems, use 3-ounces of barley straw for every square yard of water surface. For ongoing maintenance, apply about half that amount in early spring, and then every six months or when the straw has rotted away. Place the straw inside porous net bags. Put something buoyant in each bag so that the nets will float near the surface of the water where the algae tends to grow. Willow Pond Aqua Farms sells barley straw in net bags. Call (716) 396-2753. Barley seeds to grow your own straw are available from Salt Spring Seeds, P.O. Box 444, Ganges, Salt Spring Island, BC V8K2W1 Canada, (250) 537-5269.

"Let's Get Growing" was the theme for the day, as both rural and urban 4-H spent the day learning about the many different aspects of plants. The official title for my workshop was really, Plants: Pretty and Practical. The object of the workshop was to teach children about the importance of flowers and explain to them there actual function for the plant. Since day camp is attended by more than 70 4-H'ers, it makes sense that I would not be going it alone with my plant planning. This is where my fellow summer assistant, Paula Marshal, steps in ready to help with every step of pollination.

We began our workshop by asking the children why plants have flowers. This type of question is always sure to garner some odd answers and today was no different. Usually in every group there was one child who knew something about pollination but there were also others who had more creative answers. One of the best was a little girl who informed me that plants had flowers so that we can use them in weddings! I have to admit that this is one of our main uses for flowers, but not quite what I had in mind!

After going over the purpose of flowers we began to teach the children about pollination and the importance of bees. In order to convey just how important bees are in the pollination of flowers, Paula and I played a game with the children called, Buzzy Buzzy Bees. The game is played by any number of people broken into groups of trees and bees. The trees are responsible for the pollen. This means that they can only hold and receive pollen from the bees. The bees job is to go from tree to tree spreading around as much pollen as possible in order to keep every tree alive. The game is made more complicated by spreading the trees apart or by increasing the number of trees. As the children work to pollinate every tree they begin to realize just how important the bees are to the process. In order to encourage the children to really get into the game, I stood on the side lines providing key information on how to sound and fly like a bee. Of course this really didn't help the children pollinate any better but it did get them pretty excited.

All in all it was a very successful day. The 4-H'ers had a good time and learned things about plants that they never knew. I found out new uses for flowers and was able to add yet another title to my growing list of services. So until next time I'm Professor Smith reminding you to always buzz regularly and fly straight!

ANNEX AUCTION

SAME TIME AND PLACE AS KATHY MAURER'S

10 A.M. WEDNESDAY, JULY 28

At Ridge Fire Co. Along Rt. 23, Between Phoenixville, Pa. and Rt. 100

Not what, not when or why you collect but where you collect is our lesson today, dear collectors. Auctions? Certainly. Antique shops? Of course. Flea markets? Yes. Garage sales? Sometimes. Junk shops? Maybe. Dumps? Closed Sunday. Also, dumps are no longer open to the public, so this vast source of collectibles is gone. Best hope now a days is to develop a deft dumpster dive or to perfect the nocturnal trash pass (grabbing stuff off the curb). Cheer up! Our indefatigable efforts to bring fresh goods to the market place have been rewarded. We have been retained by an heir to sell the contents of an estate assiduously harvested from the dumps of South Jersey many years ago. Stored in rusty school buses, derelict house trailers and ramshackle buildings, we will attempt to deliver this conglomeration to you unscathed, with patina intact. Relive your youth! Visit the dumps of yesteryear! Removed for convenience of sale, to Ridge.

Pickings include a great selection of old tools & gadgets, carbide lamps, books back to the Civil War including record of officers & men of N.J. in the Civil War 1861-65, vols. I & II (Did you know that many from this part of N.J. fought on the confederate side because it lies below the Mason-Dixon line?). Catalogs, radios & radio books, glass slides & projector, fishing including Winchester reel, military items, piano stool, toys, clocks & clock parts, tins & boxes including Joe Louis Punch! Soda Crate.

A 10% BUYER'S PREMIUM WILL BE APPLIED.

AVIAN INFLUENZA REMAINS A CONSTANT THREAT

David C. Kradel
MS, MPH, DVM

Today the poultry industry remains at risk for the possible reintroduction and spread of avian influenza (A.I.). The author has been involved with the three experiences Pennsylvania has had with A.I. since 1983. A brief review and the lessons learned are presented below.

1983-1984 Epidemic

In 1983-1984, Pennsylvania faced an epidemic because of the H5N2 strain of A.I. virus. At the beginning of the epidemic, the virus caused only a mild disease — that is, the virus was of low pathogenicity. After passing through flocks over a five-month period, the virus mutated or changed to one causing severe disease with high mortality — that is, it became a highly pathogenic virus.

Before this H5N2 virus was eradicated in May 1984 more than 16 million chickens had been depopulated and hundreds of thousands had died at an estimated cost to the industry of about $100 million. Additionally this epidemic resulted in an estimated $360 million in increased food costs to consumers.

1985-1986 Outbreak

The second experience with A.I. started on Dec. 24, 1985. Broilers (roasters) being grown for the New York live bird market were submitted to the author at the Penn State Diagnostic Laboratory and found to have A.I. because of the H5N2 virus.

An immediate epidemiologic investigation established the fact that this virus had been introduced via contaminated crates from a New York live bird market. These markets had never been previously tested. Testing was initiated and a large number were found to be positive for the H5N2 A.I. virus. It is very possible that this was also the source of the H5N2 introduction in 1983.

The combination of an on-going statewide A.I. surveillance program (testing 12,000 samples a month, an alert poultry serviceman, a rapid laboratory diagnosis, aggressive control actions, and the A.I. virus entering a less dense poultry area) resulted in this outbreak being controlled after the depopulation of 350,000 chickens.

1997-1998 Outbreak

The third multiple case outbreak of A.I. started in May 1997 because of another strain of A.I. virus — H7N2. Epidemiological evidence suggests that this outbreak started from the spreading of manure from a commercial layer flock that had experienced significant but uninvestigated mortality, and which had been selling spent fowl to a number of dealers from the live bird markets.

This H7N2 virus was classified experimentally as being nonpathogenic — that is, the virus would not produce significant disease. For several years this H7N2 virus had been the predominant serotype (strain) of A.I. virus in the live bird markets — having replaced the previously predominant H5N2.

Initial efforts to control the spread of this virus by the conventional quarantine and depopulation approach were discontinued in favor of a modified quarantine and product salvage approach after epidemiologic evidence suggested that immediate depopulation efforts, despite tightly controlled procedures, may have contributed to spread of the virus. This modified approach was successful in eradicating the H7N2 virus from the commercial industry. This third epidemic had involved 2.7 million birds in 47 flocks on 27 premises.

Practice Biosecurity

Today Pennsylvania remains at high risk for the possible introduction of A.I. The three past introductions and epidemics taught us some important lessons that our industry needs to constantly review. In short, these lessons all involve the practice of biosecurity.

Some of these elements of biosecurity are described below.

Live Markets Major Risk

Probably the greatest risk of introducing A.I. to a commercial flock is illustrated by the December 1985 introduction. In this outbreak, contaminated crates from the New York live bird market introduced the virus to roaster flocks that were being "topped off" — that is, the virus was introduced and because some roasters remained to be taken several weeks later, they were infected and developed A.I.

Today there are at least 100 live bird markets in New York and New Jersey, and the number is increasing. When USDA tests these markets for A.I., som invariably are found to be positive.

Both Pennsylvania and New York are cooperating in programs to try and reduce the risk associated with these markets. Because source flocks may introduce virus to the live markets, all flocks sending birds to the market must be tested for A.I. Markets that are found positive must be cleaned and disinfected before restocking.

Despite these major efforts the nature of the live bird markets (many producers and dealers with varying levels of commitment, many species, many multistate sources with intermingling of sources during holding or transport, activity among the markets themselves, the practical difficulties in effective sanitation procedures, the difficulty in enforcement of requirements, etc.) suggest that although the risks associated with the live bird markets may be reduced they are unlikely to be eliminated. Therefore preventing the introduction and/or spread of A.I. may depend to a large extent on recognizing this risk and minimizing direct contacts between the live market and other segments of the commercial industry, maintaining good biosecurity programs, and participating in the statewide A.I. monitoring program.

A.I. Can Circulate Undetected — Must Monitor

Perhaps the second greatest risk to Pennsylvania is having a very mild (nonpathogenic) form of A.I. virus circulating among flocks but going undetected or unchallenged. Although highly pathogenic A.I. is likely to produce signs and mortality that can't be ignored, a virus that is nonpathogenic or of low pathogenicity may produce no problem or problems that are indistinguishable from other infectious agents causing respiratory signs or egg production loss.

With time and passage through flocks, these nonpathogenic viruses may become pathogenic as the virus did in 1983. For this reason, all producers and companies should be participating in the Pennsylvania Avian Influenza Monitoring (Surveillance) Program. This program tests blood, eggs, and other samples for the presence of A.I. antibody (evidence of prior exposure to A.I.) or virus. At this time the program is testing more than 140,000 samples each year. Service people or owners should submit birds or other samples to a diagnostic laboratory in any situation involving a respiratory disease of uncertain etiology (cause), unexplained egg production drop, and/or increased mortality of an uncertain etiology.

A.I. Easily Spread In Early Flock Infections

Possibly the third greatest risk for introduction A.I. is transferring the virus from a flock not suspected of having A.I., to another flock via movement of people, equipment, suppliers, or birds. During the early stages of a flock infection, the amount of feces that will cover the surface of a penny can infect one million birds. Although epidemiological observations in 1983-1984 and again in 1986 would suggest that 3-4 weeks after having gone through a flock, the virus can not be found, the virus is present in great quantities and readily transferable in the early stages of a flock infection. Excellent biosecurity measures are necessary to prevent transfer from one flock to another during this high-risk period.

Waterfowl Present Risk

Finally, the risk associated with waterfowl, including seagulls, needs to be recognized. Waterfowl are well-known carriers of A.I. virus. They probably present the greatest risk in the spring — they are found in large numbers in fields near our poultry houses.

During the 1983-1984 epidemic, 8 percent of the seagulls tested were blood test positive for H5N2, but the virus was never isolated. Tracking feces from these birds into a poultry house is a potential source of infection. The first flock diagnosed in the 1983-1984 epidemic had a pond next to the poultry house that was frequented by waterfowl. This was suspected as a possible source of infection for that flock.

Alternative Control Methods

In the past, the recommended method of highly pathogenic A.I. control has been to keep it out of commercial flocks and to immediately eradicate infected flocks if A.I. gained entrance. Potential lack of indemnity funds and/or significant spread before diagnosis or control actions could be initiated might dictate alternative control methods.

The possible feasibility of alternative control methods depends in part on the fact that the virus is very labile (it dies rapidly outside the chicken) and within 3-4 weeks of going through a flock, the flock is immune and the virus is usually gone. To utilize this method of control, very strict biosecurity procedures have to be in place to prevent spread from the flock during the initial weeks of infection. During the recent H7N2 problem, alternative control methods were used and were successful in eradicating the virus.

Vaccine has also been shown to be useful in A.I. control programs. These killed vaccines need to be strain-specific. Because they contain adjuvants (immunological agents) that would leave a short-term tissue residue, they could not be used in broilers. Killed vaccines must be injected and would cost an estimated 7 cents a dose. In cooperation with USDA and the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, Pennsylvania has recently completed field trials related to the safety of killed A.I. vaccines. The use of recombinant live vaccines could reduce the problems associated with administration and cost of killed vaccines.

Unfortunately, even though effective, alternative control methods (other than eradication by depopulation, cleaning, and disinfecting) could bring with them a heavy toll in interstate and international commerce.

Poultry And Swine Share A.I. Strains

Two strains of influenza virus found in swine (H1N1 and H3N2) may also occur in poultry. H1N1, commonly called swine influenza, is a common infection of swine and is occasionally seen in turkeys. The H3N2 has recently emerged as a second, and apparently more severe form, of influenza for swine.

This H3N2 virus is the second most common A.I. virus (H7N2 is the most common) found in the New York live bird markets. Killed virus vaccines are available for use in both H1N1 and H3N2 in swine.

A.I. Generally Not Human Health Risk

Avian serotypes (strains) of the influenza viruses were generally not considered infectious for people.

In 1995, a strain of A.I. virus found in Hong Kong did infect some people and this has raised some concern. The strain of the virus present in Hong Kong is not present in the U.S.

Land O'Lakes Chairman Supports China's WTO Entry

DES MOINES, Iowa — The future of U.S. agriculture depends significantly on the ability of U.S. farmers to compete in the global marketplace, and two immediate priorities should be to admit China into the World Trade Organization (WTO) and to adopt "Fast Track" trade negotiation authority, Stan Zylstra, Land O'Lakes board chairman, recently told federal officials.

Zylstra's comments were presented at a U.S. Department of Agriculture and U.S. Trade Representative "listening session" in Des Moines, Iowa on July 12.

The session was one of several intended to solicit public comment before the next round of the WTO negotiations. The Land O'Lakes chairman indicated that Land O'Lakes members endorsed the admittance of China into the WTO and "Fast Track" authority during the national cooperative's annual meeting in February.

The admittance of China to the WTO has the potential to generate new United States agricultural export opportunities, Zylstra said.

"China is the world's most populous country, has one of the most rapidly growing economies and is a major participant in world trade," he added. "China needs to be a part of the process now in order for her to have input in developing a consistent, enforceable set of trading rules."

Zylstra also commended the U.S. Trade Representative, USDA and the negotiating team for the agricultural trade agreement reached with China this spring.

"When fully implemented, the agreement will result in greatly expanded market opportunities for pork, dairy products, fertilizer, grains and other agricultural products," he said. "But most of the benefits of the agreement will not be realized until China is admitted to the WTO."

"Fast Track" trade negotiation authority would streamline the process for consideration and implementation of trade agreements, particularly those involving tariffs or changes in domestic law, Zylstra said, adding that it would ultimately enhance the status and effectiveness of U.S. negotiators.

Going forward, Land O'Lakes' primary focus in relation to international trade will be the creation of new market opportunities in dairy and pork products, the Land O'Lakes board chairman said.

Land O'Lakes is an active member of the National Milk Producers Federation, the U.S. Dairy Export Council and The National Pork Producers Council, which support the same priorities.

U.S. farmers can compete and win on a level playing field, Zylstra said, adding that in order to ensure equitable competiton, the United States should pursue global agreement in four areas:

- the reduction of domestic/internal agricultural subsidies;
- the reduction of import tariffs on agricultural products;
- the elimination of non-tariff or artificial barriers to trade; and
- the elimination of export subsidies.

"U.s. Agriculture should have the opportunity to produce and market products in the spirit of free markets, based on equitable standards for all participants," Zylstra said.

Land O'Lakes is a national food and agricultural cooperative owned by farmers, ranchers and local cooperatives in 29 states.

It is a leading marketer of dairy products across the United States; serves international customers with a variety of food products and animal feed ingredients; and provides family farmers and member cooperatives with an extensive line of feed, seed, plant food and crop protection products.

PHILADELPHIA — The eighth annual Philadelphia County Fair, held in Fairmount Park recently, drew a total of 288 exhibitors.

In the animal exhibits, Saul High School FFA entries were up considerably from 1998. The addition of a second 4-H livestock club in Philadelphia County added to the 4-H numbers as well, according to organizers.

The Manatawna 4-H Club was started by Darl and Dave Weatherill. Bill McFadden continues to be the leader at the Fox Chase 4-H Club.

The 1999 Market Hog Auction was conducted the last Friday of the fair in early June. All 32 markets animals went for at least $220. The grand champion brought $700. Auctioneer was Harry Bachman, Annville.

Members Of Congress Express Support For Soy Purchase, Donation Initiative

SAINT LOUIS, Mo. – A bipartisan group of U.S. Representatives is urging USDA to undertake an emergency program to increase concessional sales and donations of soybeans and soybean products by $1 billion in the next two years.

This action is needed to address the sharp drop in soybean prices and income in the past year, and USDA is forecasting record stocks and prices at 30-year lows for the 1999/2000 marketing year.

"A letter co-signed by 45 members of Congress has been delivered to Secretary of Agriculture Dan Glickman urging him to use his existing authorities under the CCC Charter Act, Section 416 (b) and various concessional sales programs, to bolster demand as well as meeting critical food assistance needs abroad," said Mike Yost, president of the American Soybean Association (ASA).

The following members of Congress co-signed the letter; Jo Ann Emerson (R-MO), David Minge (D-MN), Sanford Bishop (D-GA), Thomas Ewing (R-IL), Bill Barret (R-NE), Lane Evans (D-IL), Jerry Moran (R-KS), David Phelps (D-IL), Eva Clayton (D-NC), Bennie Thompson (D-MS), James Oberstar (D-MN), Doug Bereuter (R-NE), Greg Ganske (R-IA), James Barcia (D-MI), James Talent (R-MO), Ronnie Shows (D-MS), Kenny Hulshof (R-MO), Marian Berry (D-AR), Vic Snyder (D-AR), Gil Gutknecht (R-MN), Jim Ryun (R-KS), Tony Hall (D-OH), Tom Latham (R-IA), David Obey (D-WI), Karen McCarthy (D-MO), Pat Danner (D-MO), Chip Pickering (R-MS), John Boehner (R-OH), Robin Hayes (R-NC), Bob Etheridge (D-NC), Allen Boyd (D-FL), Ron Kind (D-WI), Ike Skelton (D-MO), Jim Nussle (R-IA), Collin Peterson (D-MN) John Thune (R-SD), Leonard Boswell (D-IA), Jim Leach (R-IA), Earl Pomeroy (D-ND), John Shimkus (R-IL), Roy Blunt (R-MO), Ted Strickland (D-OH), Dennis Moore (D-KS), Bob Ney (R-OH), and David Hobson (R-OH),

The group of legislators expressed support for the initiative taken by ASA and the National Oilseed Processors Association (NOPA) to compile a comprehensive list of countries where concessional sales or donations of specific quantities of soybeans and soy products valued at $1 billion can be made with minimal displacement of commercial sales. The product list, delivered to Secretary Glickman on April 20, includes soybean meal, soy oil, and soy flour; high protein isolated soy protein; textured vegetable protein and soy protein concentrates.

"In addition to responding to the critical short-term need to support prices and income for U.S. soybean producers, this initiative provides a unique opportunity for United States to address the food aid requirements of the most needy countries in the world, and it will help develop new long-term markets for soy products, including newly developed soy protein isolates and concentrates," Yost said.

ASA's initiative will also help maintain and rebuild commercial markets for U.S. soybeans and soy products, which have been diminished or lost as a result of the recent global financial crisis, and it will help reduce projected federal outlays under the soybean marketing assistance loan program by creating new demand and raising U.S. soybean prices.

"This program can be used to introduce the use of vegetable protein as a means to improve the nutritional value of diets in countries requiring humanitarian assistance," Yost said. "In addition, this will support U.S. employment and economic activity through the processing, handling, and transportation of the soy products included in the initiative."

A 60-pound bushel of soybeans yields about 48 pounds of protein-rich meal and 11 pounds of oil. Soybeans were planted on more than 72 million acres in the United States last year, and that number is expected to increase to more than 73 million acres this year. The U.S. produces half of the world's supply of soybeans, and is responsible for more than 60 percent of the world's soybean trade.

"Secretary Glickman has shown a great deal of interest in our proposal," Yost said. "We are hopeful that this show of support by members of Congress will help USDA evaluate this opportunity to bolster prices and income for U.S. soybean producers."

Details of ASA's purchase and donation program are available to the public on ASA's web site at http://www.oilseeds.org/asa/policy99/foodaid/foodaid.htm. A copy of the letter to Secretary Glickman is available at http://www.oilseeds.org/asa/documents/congltr0599.htm.

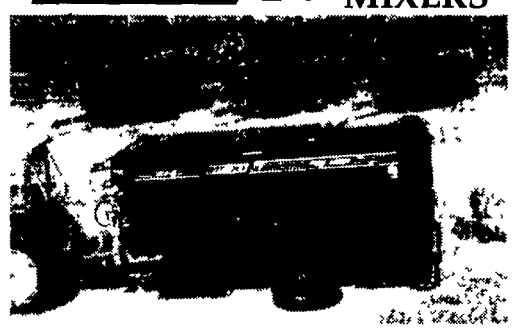
ROTO-MIX IV FEED MIXERS



With ROTO-MIX IV you reduce fines, minimize shrinkage, and eliminate dead spots. The gentle tumbling action mixes fragile flaked and high-moisture ingredients without grinding, resulting in a fluffier, more nutritional ration.

The ROTO-MIX end-to-end... side-to-side mixing system provides the most thorough TMR available, ensuring that your cattle will consume a balanced ration of nutrients in every pound of feed they eat.

YOUR RENT IS YOUR DOWN PAYMENT

"Hoober gave me the opportunity to rent a tractor for the summer and put that money toward the purchase price of the tractor itself. They bent over backwards to help me in every way possible."

Rob Seabright
West Berlin, PA

When Rob Seabright went looking for a tractor, he went straight to Hoober, Inc. What Rob found was not only an outstanding tractor, but an outstanding rent-to-own plan as well. Hoober is renting Rob a tractor for the summer and allowing him to apply the full amount of the rent payments toward the purchase of the tractor this fall. But Hoober's commitment went beyond the rental and sale. "There was a screw missing on the throttle of the tractor and it would wobble back-and-forth, but it was nothing major," said Rob. "But one day as I'm getting ready to jump in the tractor, I looked up and there was a Hoober truck sitting in the field. He ran out of his way to put a little screw in the throttle. That impressed me." A great rent-to-own plan and great service... just part of Hoober's dedication to customer satisfaction.

But at Hoober, renting is only one way to get the tractor you need. You can choose a financing option that fits your budget. Hoober leases, rents and sells quality Case-IH tractors from 50-425 hp. As always, you get the power you require at terms you can afford plus Hoober's exceptional service to make sure your tractor will work as hard as you do. Call Hoober today and find out how easy it is to put yourself behind a tractor with the power and performance that's right for your operation.

Top Producers Choose Knight!

Congratulations to the La-Foster Farm

Terry and Gerald Foster are very proud of their record-breaking cow, Lucy, and rightly so. She produced 75,260 pounds of milk in her last lactation. They are also pleased with their Knight Reel Auggie® mixers, which, combined with the Foster's excellent management practices, have propelled the La-Foster herd average to the #1 milk production status in North Carolina. There is no comparison to the complete, palatable blend from a Knight Reel Auggie, with its patented reel and auger blending combination. Why else would the La-Foster Farm choose only Knight to feed their record-setting herd?

Meeting all your harvesting needs!

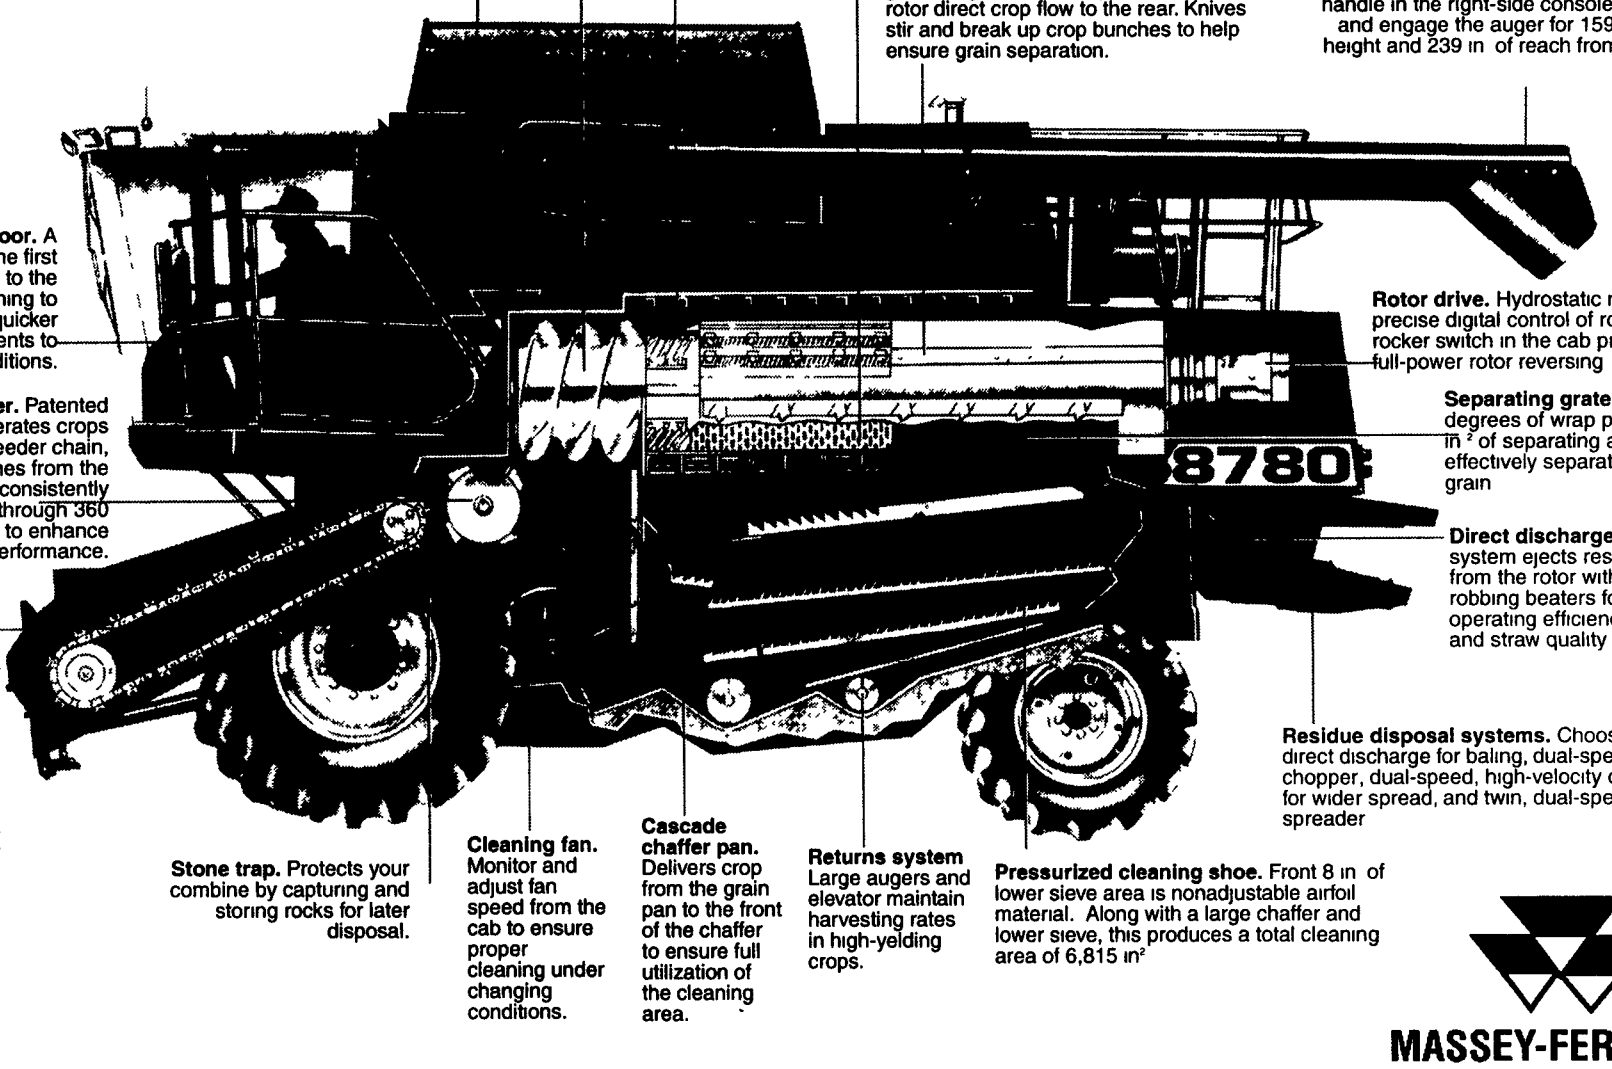
The inside story on the ultimate harvesting machine.

MASSEY FERGUSON 8780



Rotor intake. Hardened auger flighting moves crop from the conical rotor intake area to the threshing area.

Grain tank. 230-bu. tank has folding extensions to reduce combine height to just 148 in.

Threshing area. Hardened threshing elements smooth crop flow while rasp bars rub crops against the concaves to efficiently dislodge the grain.

Concaves. Seven sections with 140 degrees of wrap provide more than 2,200 in² of area for gentle, yet complete threshing

Sweeps, knives, and vanes. Rotor sweeps ensure crop rotation generating centrifugal force to separate remaining grain. Angled, stationary vanes above the rotor direct crop flow to the rear. Knives stir and break up crop bunches to help ensure grain separation.

Turret unloader. Buttons on the multifunction handle in the right-side console let you swing and engage the auger for 159-in. discharge height and 239 in of reach from the combine center

Grain sample door. A chute delivers the first bit of grain to the access opening to facilitate quicker adjustments to changing conditions.

Front feed beater. Patented beater accelerates crops leaving the feeder chain, separates stones from the crop flow, and consistently feeds the rotor through 360 degrees to enhance performance.

Feeder system. Wide, 44-in. width matches the exceptional rotor capacity. Downtime is reduced with a feed system reverse, operated from within the cab, to quickly clear feed system and header

Rotor drive. Hydrostatic motor provides precise digital control of rotor speeds A rocker switch in the cab provides easy, full-power rotor reversing

Separating grates. A full 180 degrees of wrap provides 2,241 in ² of separating area to effectively separate remaining grain

Direct discharge. Patented system ejects residue directly from the rotor without power-robbing beaters for increased operating efficiency, reliability and straw quality

Residue disposal systems. Choose from direct discharge for baling, dual-speed chopper, dual-speed, high-velocity chopper for wider spread, and twin, dual-speed spreader

Stone trap. Protects your combine by capturing and storing rocks for later disposal.

Cleaning fan. Monitor and adjust fan speed from the cab to ensure proper cleaning under changing conditions.

Cascade chaffer pan. Delivers crop from the grain pan to the front of the chaffer to ensure full utilization of the cleaning area.

Returns system Large augers and elevator maintain harvesting rates in high-yielding crops.

Pressurized cleaning shoe. Front 8 in of lower sieve area is nonadjustable airfoil material. Along with a large chaffer and lower sieve, this produces a total cleaning area of 6,815 in²

Pennsylvania Guild of Craftsmen

The purpose and intent of the Pennsylvania Guild of Craftsmen is to promote, encourage and develop one of Pennsylvania's finest resources... crafts.

For over half a century this Guild has served the crafts community through educational opportunities, marketing events, information services, encouragement and fellowship.

A non-profit organization, the Pennsylvania Guild of Craftsmen, consists of 20 chapters throughout the state. The chapters are different in flavor and programs, with each reflecting the interest and needs of its membership. Through a standards committee the Guild provides jurying opportunities, recognizing and honoring exemplary design and craftsmanship. The Guild also sponsors gallery exhibits and an annual workshop series.

A center for classes, workshops and seminars the State Craft Center in Tyler State Park hosts the Spring Crafts Celebration in May and the State Craft Festival at Tyler in October. These events attract over 40,000 crafts patrons from as far away as Florida and the Midwest. The Guild also offers a "craftsmen in residency" program, a form of scholarship to craftsmen working to develop full potential in the field.

Keep yourself informed on all of the Guild's Craft Shows and Fairs by registering for our mailings. .

Raku Pottery
By Andrew Wender

Jeweled Dragonfly
by Ingrid Blackert

This year's "must see" event, the oldest and most prestigious gathering of fine craftsmen in the state, is the Pennsylvania Guild of Craftsmen's 53rd Annual State Craft Fair. Exhibiting Craftsmen average over two decades of experience in the pursuit of fine crafts. The culmination of this vast experience is evident in our Craftsmen's commitment to their outstanding glazes and forms of pottery to the richness and texture of the hand dyed colors of loom woven fabrics. The Pennsylvania Craft Tradition of Redware and Fine Furniture is juxtaposed by contemporary and innovative designs in stained glass and papermaking.

Talk to our craftspeople about the history of their crafts and their personal development, you'll gain a greater appreciation and value for Pennsylvania Guild members' hand-crafted wares and the experience that shows!

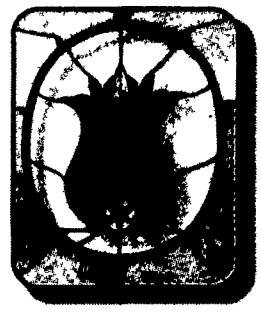
Demonstrations



Embossed Papers,

Booth 4

Chong and Judi Lim of Bar Harbor, ME will be demonstrating how they create their beautifully embossed papers. Chong will be carving molds using a hammer, chisel and miniature electric tools. Sheets of paper are pressed into these molds, making an impression on the paper. The designs are then hand colored.

Dollmaking,

Booth 36

Linda Horn demonstrates how she produces her one-of-a-kind cornhusk dolls, which are made from locally grown Pennsylvania field corn. Linda's work has been exhibited in museums and featured in eight national magazines.

Susan Perry, a weaver since 1971, is enthusiastic about demonstrating her techniques. Known as the "Placemat Lady," Susan offers a wide variety of colors and combinations with matching table runners.

Pottery Animals,

Booth 37

Karris Barry brings the dynamic natural patterns of her subjects to play on her pottery utilizing two techniques, engobes and sgrafitto. Engobes is created by dipping the pottery into colored liquid clays. Sgrafitto is accomplished by scraping away some of the engobes to allow the colors to show through. Watch as she brings her menagerie to life using just a few sgrafitto tools.

Handcrafted
Is The Design Fast Track

When the new chic women's show on the Lifetime network "New Attitudes" devotes several days to Handcrafted Clothing; when the Discovery channel's explosively popular "Lynette Jennings Designs" commits air-time daily to independent craftspersons, you know "handcrafted" is the hottest trend in the country.

For those of you in the know, the Pennsylvania Guild of Craftsmen has been the leading and oldest resource for traditional, contemporary and innovative craftsmanship in the country.

The experts with "The Eye" for fine, elegant china turned to Guild member Diana Mauer to create a black and green marbled china pattern with a gold rim called "Classic Edition" while "The Connoisseurs" of chocolate, Godiva Chocolates, asked for a custom box and wrapping paper design.

Guild craftsperson, Darryl Arawjo, reinvented the word innovative when he brought monofilament fiber (fishing line) into the traditional world of basket weaving. Each piece takes hundreds of hours to create and has received rave reviews from the Arts and Crafts world.

Sherri Dunbar, whose works in fiber are in many private collections throughout the United States, Europe, Japan and the Philippines, uses her talent as a means of displaying her concern for wildlife conservation. One-of-a-kind quilts such as "Alarm in the Rain Forest" and "Oil in the Ocean" portray the threats that disrupt nature's plan.

International "Bird Friend," Eric Berman, has one-of-a-kind birdhouses hanging around the U.S., Canada, Greece and Japan. Recently, one of Erickson Birdhouses' weathered a ferocious hurricane in Key West, Florida. Much to Berman's craftsmanship, the house remained undamaged and is currently housing feathered friends at the historic Marquesa Hotel on Fleming Street.

This is just a taste of the 275 sought-after craftsmen that you will personally meet during the Pennsylvania Guild of Craftmen's 53rd Annual State Craft Fair.

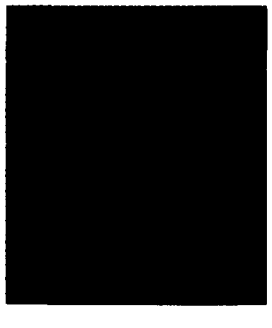
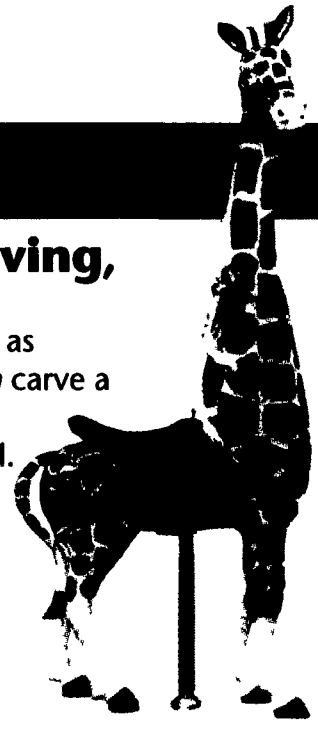
W. Eugene Burkhart will demonstrate the art of pressed flower designs. Learn how to create a pressed flower design from start to finish, including the proper way to harvest plant material, the different methods of pressing plant material, and "Oshibana," the art of Japanese flower pressing.



Carousel Carving,
Booth 12

Watch in amazement as Fred & Dave Dilworth carve a giant block of wood into a carousel animal.



Rug Hooking,
Booth 222

Annie Harlin will demonstrate her special talents in this traditional craft, which is seeing a resurgence of interest. She creates unique designs and color schemes using wool fabric strips worked on monks cloth. Annie also enjoys experimenting with new fabrics and ideas to meet the needs of her customers.

We Need Your Help!

The Guild is seeking community, private and foundation help for the renovation of our State Craft Center at Tyler State Park. Renovation of the building will serve the crafts and public communities through educational programs at the site throughout the year.

The first component of the renovation phase includes the rebuilding/replacement of the existing shake roof, insulating the roof with a minimum of R-19 insulation, replacement of the gutters and downspouts, rebuilding of the chimneys and painting. Once the roof and exterior have been refurbished, the building will be scraped and repainted. With this accomplished, the interior of the building will no longer be subjected to constant assault by the elements.

You can be a part of Craft History! These necessary renovations would make the Craft Center the premier center for Crafts in the country. With the interior renovations completed, on-going educational programs, exhibits, professional workshops and seminars, marketing events, administrative/information offices and craftsmen-in-residence programs can be realized. The advantage to the public is immeasurable.

Please support The Pennsylvania Guild of Craftsmen in our efforts to expand the quality of craft programs that can be offered to all ages at the Craft Center.

Dairy Shrine Names CRI Chief Guest Of Honor

COLUMBUS, Ohio — One of the dairy industry's best-known cooperative leaders have been selected as the national Dairy Shrine's Guest of Honor for 1999.

Thomas L. Lyon, chief executive officer of Cooperative Resources International in Shawano, Wisconsin, will receive the award at the annual banquet of National Dairy Shrine during World Dairy Expo this fall.

Lyon has been a major player in the diary cooperative business since becoming general manager of Midwest Breeders Cooperative in 1975.

Under his leadership, the organization consolidated with Minnesota Valley Breeders Association to become 21st Century Genetics.

The move orchestrated by Lyon was one of the larger complete consolidations in artificial insemination history, and helped reduce operating costs for the two cooperatives by over one million dollars. 21st Century Genetics went on to be the first AI organization to adopt the 50-point linear scale for rating individual type traits in dairy cattle.

Dramatic changes in dairying prompted Lyon to play a major role in the formation of Cooperative Resources International in 1993.

CRI at the outset was a member-owned holding cooperative joining the business functions of Wisconsin Dairy Herd Improvement Cooperative and 21st Century Genetics in an effort to control costs and improve service to farmer members. Two other AI cooperatives and a livestock marketing cooperative have now joined CRI as subsidiaries. The organization currently has over 1100 employees and 60,000 members

In 1994 Lyon worked with two other Shawano businesses to form a Child Car Cooperative at CRI headquarters With a capacity for 80 children, the first of its kind center called Kids in the Kountry is located in a new facility adjacent to CRI offices.

In addition to his role as CEO of Cooperative Resources International. Lyon is a board member and former chairman of the National Cooperative Business Association, the National Association of Animal Breeders, and the Cooperative Development Foundation.

He is also a former President and Board member of the Board of Regents of the University of Wisconsin and in the Wisconsin Federation of Cooperatives. He has also served as a trustee of both the Cooperative Foundation and the Graduate Institute of Cooperative Leadership.

Lyon is a director of M&I Bank of Shawano, and is involved with the FFA Foundation, the Governor's Task Force on Wisconsin Stewardship, National Dairy Shrine, the Wisconsin Animal Industries Foundation, and the National Agricultural, Research, Extension, Education and Economics Advisory Board. His past activities have included involvement with 4-H, June Dairy Month, dairy cattle judging, Rotary, and his local parish.

A graduate of Iowa State University in Dairy Science and the youngest son of an Iowa dairy family, Lyon began his career with the Iowa State Dairy Association before moving on to various positions with Midwest Breeders Cooperative.

He was ISDU Dairy Science Distinguished Graduate in 1980 and was named to Phi Kappa Phi there in 1984. He was also World Dairy Expo's Industry Person of the Year in 1985.

Lyon's numerous other distinctions have come from organizations such as the University of Wisconsin,the National Agri-Marketing Association, Alpha Gamma Rho, and the National Cooperative Business Association.

Lyon and his wife Barbara have two sons and a daughter.

The Guest of Honor distinction is given annually to a contemporary leader who has made outstanding contributions to the dairy industry. Members of National Dairy shrine make nominations for the recognition.

Tim Elkner, Penn State Cooperative Extension, Lancaster County

I'm sure the first topic of conversation among farmers is the drought. Other than to water as much as possible in your situation I don't have any other advice to help you through the dry weather. Monitor your crop carefully and be sure not to overwater. The temptation is to turn on the irrigation automatically each day but check the soil first to be sure that it is sufficiently dry. Crops may wilt in the middle of the day in extreme heat even with sufficiently moist soil. The roots just cannot keep up with the wate demands of the leaves in that situation. Once the temperature drops the leaves will return to normal as the roots can once again provide sufficient water.

When harvesting from drought-stressed fields, be sure to start as early in the morning as possible. Besides the fruit/vegetables being cooler you will also be harvesting at the time of day when the produce will have the most water in it. This will result in both higher quality and longer shelf life. You should also harvest irrigated fields as early as possible as well for the same reasons!

Vegetables The dry weather has one advantage I can think of - reduced disease pressure. However, diseases can still show-up in your fields so do not stop scouting or preparing for them. Two perennial problems in our area are early blight on tomatoes and powdery mildew on cucurbits. Dr. Alan MacNab, Penn State Extension Pathologist, gives the following recommendation for controlling these diseases. Early blight: If early blight is bad, rotate and insure adequate fertility for next years crop; in most cases, fungicides should begin not later than first appearance of early blight symptoms. Quadris is an exciting new fungicide now labeled for use on tomatoes; rates are listed in the Commercial Vegetable Guide. Quadris provides outstanding control of early blight and Septoria leaf spot. Where used, Quadris should be alternated with fungicides having modes of action that are different from those of other materials in the fungicide program such as Bravo and Dithane.

Powdery mildew: Powdery mildew has been important in recent years. Some new varieties are being developed with various levels of resistance. When powdery mildew is present, fungicides are suggested for summer squash, and for winter squash and Halloween pumpkins. Quadris is a new fungicide that provides especially good control of powdery mildew, downy mildew, and some other diseases; when used, Quadris must be alternated with other fungicides with different modes of action. The following fungicides may be helpful as materials to alternate with Quadris: Bravo provides good control where coverage is good, but since it is not systemic, control can be weak on undersurfaces of leaves. Benlate may be helpful in some areas, but resistance to Benlate has been a significant problem in many areas.

A Section 18 label for use the use of Nova 40W to control powdery mildew in Pennsylvania has just been granted. Nova is an excellent material to alternate with Quadris, since Nova also is highly effective for powdery mildew. Growers planning to use this material must have a copy of the special label in their possession at the time of application and must report applications to the PDA at the end of the year.

Here is the currently recommended spray program to control powdery mildew on cucurbits and manage resistance to fungicides. Alternate the following two treatments at 7-day intervals: Quadris 11-15.4 fl. Oz./acre (very good control of powdery mildew, black rot, anthracnose, and alternaria leaf spot also labeled to control downey mildew, Cercospora leaf spot and Rhizoctonia belly rot) and Nova 40W 2.5 oz./acre + chlorothalonil (Bravo, Terranil), 2-3 pint 6F/acre or equivalent rates of other formulations. Nova is good for mildew control and the chlorothalonil will help control black rot, anthracnose, downey mildew, scab, Alternaria leaf spot and some other diseases.

Important: be sure to follow the label instructions and rotate these materials to reduce the build-up of resistance in powdery mildew!

Vegetable Field Day: I encourage all vegetable growers with an interest in using the no-till system to attend the field day at Steve Groff's farm in Holtwood on July 28. This will be the sixth field day and I have always learned something new each time I have attended. Steve has done an excellent job of blending various techniques on his farm to achieve a profitable and more sustainable production system Topics for discussion this year include planters, irrigation, soil quality, farm use of computers, and geographic information systems (GIS) Also new this year will be a soil pit allowing people to view the effects this system has below the soil surface. At noon, Dan Towery, Natural Resources Specialist from the Conservation Technology Information Center in West Lafayette, Indiana, will give a national and international perspective on soil conservation trends. Jill Auburn, National Director of USDA's SARE Program, will share how farmers can apply for grants to test new sustainable practices.

Steve Groff is currently utilizing funds from a SARE grant to observe the economic and environmental benefits of no-till processing tomatoes. If you have never attended one of Steve's field days consider starting this year.

Strawberries: Kathy Demchak, research associate in small fruit production at Penn State, noted that the loss of Rovral and Ronilan has caused a great concern among growers as to what to use to control gray mold. A new material, Elevate 50WDG (fenhexamid) from Tomen Agro, Inc. is now registered to control this disease.

It has demonstrated excellent control of gray mold. It has both 'protective and curative activity', so it can be used as a bloom spray and as needed during the harvest season. It works by inhibiting germ tube and mycellial growth of the fungus. It has a unique chemistry, so if alternated with other fungicides, is useful in resistance management. It is classified as a 'Reduced Risk Pesticide', with a short re-entry interval of 4 hours, and a pre-harvest interval of 0 days. It's a little late for use on strawberries this year (except day-neutrals). However, it is also labeled for use on grapes.

Spider Mites: Another unfortunate side effect of the hot, dry weather is the resulting increase in spider mite populations This includes both red and two-spotted spider mites on fruit and two-spots on several vegetable crops, especially watermelons You need to scout your fields regularly for these pests during this type of weather to discover outbreaks early and prevent crop damage The warm weather accelerates the reproduction of these pests so a small, undiscovered population can rapidly explode into a major outbreak with significant crop damage.

Tree fruit growers should consult the Tree Fruit Production Guide for information on scouting for beneficial insects that can control mites before applying a control spray. If necessary, recommendations on what to spray can also be found in the guide. Vegetable growers usually do not have the option of waiting for or using beneficial insects to control mites so consult the Vegetable Production Guide for the material(s) labeled to control mites on individual vegetable crops.

Japanese Beetles on Fruit

Greg Krawczyk & Larry A Hull, entomologists at the Fruit Research Lab in Biglerville, note that now is the time to watch for increases in populations of the Japanese beetle, especially after each rain period. As the ground softens from the rain, it makes it easier for the adult beetles to escape from their living quarters for the last 10 months. The metallic green Japanese beetles can be observed feeding on leaves and fruits during warm and sunny days during July and August There is only one generation of this pest in Pennsylvania

The adults feed by chewing the leaf tissue between veins and leaving a lace-like skeleton Japanese beetle injury on apples might sometimes looks similar to the injury done by the obliquebanded leafroller larvae, but the presence or absence of the webbing should help in proper identification of injury If chemical control is necessary, any of the organophosphate insecticides should provide satisfactory control on apple The carbamate Sevin can be used on peaches/nectarines

Nine all-new Case IH "L" Series front-end loaders – such as the Case IH L550 pictured here on a Case IH MX100C tractor – offer 13 standardized attachment options for greater versatility and productivity. The new low-profile with two-way hydraulic self-leveling improves visibility.

Case Loaders Offer Significant Improvements

RACINE, Wis. — Case Corporation introduces the nine Case IH "L" Series front-end loaders, featuring an all-new design to meet farmers' diverse needs for performance, durability, and serviceability.

"Teamed with a Case IH tractor, an "L" Series loader will provide the perfect integrated performance system for numerous material handling chores," said Keith Whitaker, Case Marketing manager. "Depending on your needs, you can choose from standard or deluxe models, as well as twice as many attachments as were previously available."

A number of design changes have been incorporated into Case IH "L" Series front-end loaders to provide improved performance, durability, and reliability.

"The new loaders eliminate the loader subframe, and use a low-profile design with lower tower height to dramatically improve visibility and access to tractor service points," said Whitaker. "One of the industry's first two-way hudraulic self-leveling systems allows the bucket to remain level during both raising and lowering, and makes this design possible on all models except the L850, which will use a mechanical self-leveling system."

"A two-point pedestal-style Quick Attachment System offers additional convenience. An operator can quickly attach or detach the loader using just two mounting points, instead of three, as in the past.

The Quick Attachment System is compatible with all current and late model Case IH tractors, including those equipped with front fenders or narrow tread settings.

Industrial-strength hydraulic cylinders, identical to those used on Case construction equipment, contribute to increased lift capacity and lift height. Larger pins and replaceable bushings at all pivot points reduce joint wear and extend service intervals. These features improve durability and reliability.

"Most models offer three loader control options," Whitaker said. "Both a rear-mount and mid-mount hose kit utilize tractor controls. However, the mid-mount kit makes it quicker and easier to attach and detach the loader. A convenient joystock is available for cab and platform models. This option uses and externally mounted loader valve, freeing up the tractor's rear hydraulic valves."

With the exclusive Case IH Quick Coupler, loader operators can increase their versatility and productivity using a standardized set of attachments. The Quick Coupler is standard equipment on all deluxe "L" Series loaders and optional on standard models.

"Changing attachments has never been easier than with Quick Coupler technology," said Whitaker. "The operator simply releases the locking pin, then drives up to the new attachment and engages the rollback circuit to secure the locking pin."

Vermeer Rolls Out L-Series

PELLA, Iowa — Twenty-five years after inventing the world's first big round baler, Vermeer is introducing a whole new family of them — the all-new Vermeer L-Series.

All four L-Series models — 504L, 505L, 604L and 605L — have undergone two years of extensive testing in virtually every kind of crop and condition. All of them feature Vermeer's exclusive bottom drum roller design for better bale density and formation. A 5-bar floating pickup with rubber-mounted pickup tines, Hay Saver Wheels and smooth, wife 14-inch belts ensure gentle hay handling and positive hay-feeding action into the bale chamber.

The smallest one in the line is Vermeer's new 504L Baler. It produces a 5-foot diameter by 4-foot wide package, weighing up to 2,000 pounds, and is designed to bale both wet or dry hay. Therefore, using the same baler, an operator can choose to harvest dry bales or high-moisture hay/alfalfa at peak maturity without worrying about weather conditions. It also results in extra cuttings, higher quality feed, plus reduced additives and lower storage and equipment costs. (Recommended moisture levels for silage baling are between 45 percent and 55 percent.)

The Vermeer 505L produces a 5-foot diameter by 5-foot wide bale, weighing up to 1,400 pounds (2,000 pounds with an optional silage kit). A minimum 50 hp tractor requirement means it can produce quality, high-density bales without the need for higher horsepowers and heavy-duty bale handling equipment. Like the 504L, the 505L features combination spring/hydraulic belt tension system for variable bale densities and sizes; therefore, bales can be tailored to the storage and handling preferences of the operator. Both models also feature a new full-sided, symmetrical fiberglass side panel design with convenient thumb-press latches. Bale ramps, Drop 'n Go ejection system and hydraulic pickup lift are optional on both 500 Series models.

The adjustable, hydraulic/pneumatic belt tension system on the new 600 Series models — 604L and 605L — allows operators to pre-select anywhere from light, soft-core bales to giant, high-density packages that weigh up to 1,900 pounds and 2,400 pounds, respectively. Bale sizes also can be preselected from 24 inches to 72 inches in diameter on both models, to accommodate different handling, storage and transport preferences.

The Vermeer 605L produces a 6-foot diameter by 5-foot wide bale and is designed for serious hay producers looking to maximize hay harvesting production per day, in virtually any type of crop and condition, including corn stalks, fescue, wheat straw, cane, crop residues, peanut stubble and timothy grass.

The Vermeer 604L produces a 4-foot wide bale and offers the high-density, low-spoilage advantages of big bales plus the convenience of 4-foot transport widths. It's ideally suited for commercial operators dealing with 8-foot-wide transport requirements. Both the 604L and 605L feature a standard Drop 'n Go ejection system for fast starts; constant velocity PTO for smooth chatter-free turns; the smooth quiet operation of heavy-duty double #60 chain; and symmetrical fiberglass side-panels with convenient thumb-press latches.

Also standard on all L-Series Balers are spiral starting rollers; slip cluth protection; hydraulic or electric double arm twine-tie systems with 8-ball twine storage; mechanical bale size, twine position, tailgate larch, and overfill indicators; transport lights; hydraulic tailgate lock valve; and resettable bale counters.

Unverferth Expands Drill Fill Line

KALIDA, Ohio — Unverferth Manufacturing Company, Inc. has announced the addition of three new single-auger drill fill models to its line.

Models are available for the 15-foot Tye series V, Great Plains 1500 series, and the Case IH 5400 drills, in addition to the current model for the fifteen-foot John Deere 1560 and 750 drills.

The Unverferth Drill Fill quickly and conveniently loads seed from ground level for easily using bulk seed from grain wagons, or eliminating the need to haul bags up and down from the drill. The heavy-duty, six-cubic inch motor, mounted at the top of the auger for cleaner operation, powers the 6 inch brush-tip or cupped-steel auger fighting for fast, gentle loading. Dual hydraulic control levers permit operation from the drill's platform or ground level. The unique three-stage telescopic downspouts extends up to 10 feet and allows complete filling of the drill from side to side.

With its spring-assisted verticle lift auger for easy positioning, the Drill Fill is easy to use and stores across the rear of drill and locks into place for convenient, compact transport once the drill is filled. The Drill Fill is easily filled from the side for easier positioning to seed source and can be mounted for left- or right-hand loading, depending on the operator's preference.

Rolling Harrow® soil conditioners for the rear of these model drills are also available for evenly distributing residue and soil firming for improved seed-to-soil contact, soil warmup and enhanced germination.

Great Plains Raises Standard For Planter Row Units

Salina, Kan. - New for 1999 Great Plains introduces its redesigned planter row unit, setting a new industry standard for strength, reliability, and accuracy.

With a welded, one-piece shank made of 7-gauge material, the Great Plains row unit is the industry's strongest With 1/2-by-2-inch arms, the parallel linkage on the Great Plains row unit is the heaviest in the industry.

Gauge wheels are easy to adjust - no shimming is required. The down-pressure springs are adjustable without wrenches The opener disks are staggered for increased penetration, and the 1 x 12 closing wheels have greater stagger for improved residue flow.

Zetor Announces New Tractor Series

HOUSTON, Texas — Zetor has announced a new series of tractors due to be introduced to the U.S. market in late summer.

The new Forterra Series includes five models, ranging in engine horsepower from 82 to 104, and in both 2- and 4-wheel drive. Smooth-shifting, fully-synchronized transmission is standard for the series, with three-speed power shift and total of 24 speeds forward, 18 reverse.

Each model features a roomy cab with entry doors on both sides and tinted windows. High-capacity heater and air conditioning are also standard features throughout the new series.

New Knife Options For Discbine® Disc Mower-Conditioners

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — Two new knife options for New Holland Discbine® disc mower-conditioners allow farmers to change knives to match crop and field conditions.

Discbine® disc mower-conditioners are factory-equipped with standard knives, which are recommended for most cutting conditions. Although these knives function well in a wide range of field and cutting conditions, when encountering light crops or rocky fields, two new knife options are recommended.

For lighter, thinner crops, New Holland offers a new knife option with twice the twist angle of standard knives. The greater knife twist angle enables the knife's cutting edge to cut closer to the ground while providing more lifting action to move the crop over the cutterbar and into the conditioning rolls or flails. The result is a cleaner cut in the most light crop conditions.

When mowing in rough, rocky fields, the new "V" knife option is recommended. This extra-sturdy knife has a greater resistance to bending when it comes in contact with a rock or other foreign object. The "V" knife is installed with the concave side facing downward.

The standard, light crop and "V" knives all have two cutting edges for twice the cutting life. They can be replaced easily from the front of the cutterbar using only one bolt per knife, without raising the header or reaching from the back of the cutterbar.

Farm Bureau Supports Federal Funding For Farmland Preservation

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The head of the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau voiced support for Congressional efforts to increase federal funding for state farmland preservation programs.

Guy Donaldson, president of the statewide farm organization, expressed support during testimony before the U.S. Senate Agriculture Committee.

The committee is considering two bills, S. 333 and S. 598, which would provide federal cost-sharing funds for the purchase of conservation easements S. 333, introduced by Sen. Pat Leahy (D-VT) would authorize up to $55 million per year in U.S. Department of Agriculture Commodity Credit Corporation funds for farmland preservation. S. 598, introduced by Sen. Rick Santorum, (R-PA), would provide for up to $50 million annually.

Pennsylvania has had a state-administered farmland preservation program in operation since 1988 after voters approved a $100 million state bond issue to fund easement purchases. The program has enabled 44 counties with farmland preservation programs to purchase conservation easements on over 1,000 farms, preserving more than 136,000 acres of farmland.

"Pennsylvania's farmland preservation program has been a successful one, but it has not been a small investment," Donaldson told Senate committee members. Nearly $265 million of state and county funds have been spent in purchasing agricultural conservation easements in Pennsylvania. Still, for numerous counties, Donaldson said, the number of farms deemed worthy of preservation substantially exceeds the number of easements counties are able to purchase. "Insufficient funding has created a waiting list of more than 1,500 farmers willing to sell ag conservation easements to another 100,000 acres of farmland," Donaldson said.

From 1996 through 1998, Pennsylvania's farmland preservation program has received approximately $2.25 million in federal funds. While small compared to total funding, Donaldson said, federal funding has been a help in stretching the program's purchasing dollar, enabling the state to preserve an additional 1,262 acres of farmland.

"Pennsylvania continues to search for ways to fund the farmland preservation program," Donaldson said. Since July 1993, a 1 percent cigarette sales tax has generated approximately $120.6 million for farmland preservation. Earlier this year, the legislature appropriated $43 million for easement purchases during the coming year.

"Pennsylvania Farm Bureau strongly support Congressional efforts to substantially increase federal appropriations to state-administered farmland preservation programs for purchases of agricultural conservation easements on farms," Donaldson said. Farm Bureau recommends that federal funding should only be available to state-administered farmland preservation programs.

"Some may feel federal funding should also be made available to preservation programs that would be administered by private preservation organizations," Donaldson said. "We would not favor such action."

The objectives of private organizations may be much broader than farmland preservation, Donaldson said. "Sometimes the objectives and actions of private preservation organizations can conflict with agriculture," Donaldson added.

"The primary objective of farmland preservation programs should not just be to preserve land," Donaldson testified. "It should be to preserve farming businesses and maintain those characteristics which will assure the continued economic viability of farming businesses in the future.

"Farmland preservation programs that are state-administered will best ensure that the goal of preserving farms will be accomplished, and other unrelated objectives will not be considered. Donaldson said.

You know the advantages of hi-moisture shelled corn versus dry corn for animal feeding. So now consider the MANY ADVANTAGES of POURED CONCRETE to store and protect your valuable grain.

"I HEARD THAT"

Wasn't it you that said you want a beautiful farm that is self supporting and even pays you quite handsomely besides for your labor to operate it??? - That is tough to find in today's market

Let's see - you wanted a large brick farm house (updated) and maybe a large modern addition w/a garage attached. Here we even add an oversized 3 car detached garage that looks like it was designed for entertaining guests – it even has it's own kitchen There is a large grassy area with a large farm pond - oh my!! What else?

Well how about three large turkey barns which are presently in operation and with all the good modern equipment in them But, you see the owners are ready to retire and would like someone like you to take over Sound too good to be true? Ck it out

Oh yes, there is also another dwelling if you would prefer to put in another operator/ hired hand This truly is a dream property with the driveways nicely paved and buildings in real good shape This is all on about 34 acres which is nicely secluded but near to every kind of service you might desire
